

Townsend Hits At Opponents Of Age Pension Plan at Hearing

Says $200 Monthly Only Enough for Decent Standard

FEARS REVOLT

Declares Youth of Country Hinting at Dictatorship

Washington—(P)—Dr. F. E. Townsend told members of the house ways and means committee today they didn't know what they were talking about if they considered a $200-a-month ceiling for old age pensions "absurdly high."

The tall, gaunt physician, sponsor of the pension program which bears his name, shook a long finger at the committee.

"No family can live on $100 a month and rear and educate its children properly," he said. "If we can't establish a standard of living higher than $40, certainly we can't maintain our type of government much longer."

Townsend, whose last appearance before a congressional committee led to an unceremonious rebuff, was testifying at hearings on amendments to the social security act and on proposed substitute pension programs.

Labor Leaders Bitterly Attack Farmers' Bill for Regulation Of Labor Relations in State

DRY LEADER DIES

Portland, Ore.—(P)—Dr. Clarence Truman Wilson, 66, founder of the Methodist church temperance board and international leader in the prohibition movement, died yesterday. He had been ill several weeks from uremic poisoning and heart trouble.

After taking a leading part in liquor debates and political efforts to win and preserve prohibition, Dr. Wilson waged his last fight against liquor during the repeal tide that swept the nation in 1932.

A graduate of University of Southern California in 1894, he came here in 1905. His widow and two daughters survive.

Supreme Tribunal Backs Ruling on Special Election

Holds Zimmerman Not Bound to Act to Fill Vacancy in Milwaukee

Madison—(P)—The supreme court yesterday upheld the attorney general's ruling that Secretary of State Zimmerman is not bound to call a special election to fill a judicial vacancy caused by the death of County Judge John C. Karel of Milwaukee.

The court entertained the application of original jurisdiction filed by the Milwaukee Board of Election Commissioners, which was not satisfied with the ruling, but refused to issue a writ requiring Zimmerman to call a special election.

Karel's successor will be chosen at the April 4 election for the term beginning next January.

Meanwhile, Charles A. Hansen occupies the post under an appointment by former Governor LaFollette.

The supreme court declared unconstitutional Chapter 2 of the laws of 1939, the second act passed by the present legislature. It proposed to write into the statutes a new provision for filling judicial vacancies which the court said is in conflict with the constitution.

The act provided that if a vacancy occurs within 40 days of the regular April election, it shall not be filled until the judicial election of the next year. It added, however, that when there is a vacancy on the supreme court it shall not be filled at the same time as an election for a full term "but on the next succeeding first Tuesday in April."

The supreme court held this provision unconstitutional because it gave supreme court justice could be named at the regular election in April and another upon the next succeeding Tuesday of the same month, rather than in April of the following year. If such a construction could be placed upon filling vacancies for the office of justice it would apply equally to other judgeships, the court held.

Shoots Daughter Then Kills Self

Resort to Blood Transfusions in Effort To Save Girl

Madison—(P)—Albert Waltz, 39, shot and seriously wounded his 16-year-old daughter, Bertha, and then fired a bullet into his head to kill himself today.

A note addressed to Mrs. Waltz asked forgiveness.

The girl, a high school student, was shot twice. In the left arm and in the back. One bullet pierced her lung. Physicians resorted to blood transfusion in an attempt to save her life.

The shooting took place in the Waltz home during the absence of Mrs. Waltz. She found Bertha lying on the floor when she returned.

"My husband said, 'go and call an ambulance,'" Mrs. Waltz told police.

"When I got back I found my husband lying in the kitchen doorway. He had shot himself through the right temple."

At the hospital, Bertha told Detective LaSalle:

"I was sitting in a chair in the living room. He (her father) came out of the bedroom. He had a gun in his hand. He said 'you didn't expect this, did you?' Then he fired."

William Chesbrough, Former State G.A.R. Commander, Succumbs

Waupun—(P)—William Henry Chesbrough, 94, former department commander of the Wisconsin Grand Army of the Republic, died at 11:45 this morning at the Wisconsin Veterans home. He had been ill a week with heart trouble.

He was born Dec. 19, 1844, at Pulaski, N. Y., and served with Company A, 40th Wisconsin Volunteer Infantry from May 4, 1864, to October, 1864. He was adjutant of the L. H. D. Crane post No. 64, Grand Army of the Republic and assistant adjutant general and colonel of the Wisconsin G.A.R.

He entered the veterans home last November. Last summer he made a trip to Gettysburg. Survivors are one son, William, Jr., of Joliet; and one daughter, Mrs. M. C. George, Tucson, Ariz.

Rumor Demented Man Tried to Kill Il Duce

Rome—(P)—Rumors that a demented man had shot a guard at Premier Mussolini's home, the Villa Torlonia, in an apparent attempt on Il Duce's life, spread tonight in Rome.

Officials first denied there was any truth to the rumors, then said they could neither confirm nor deny them.

The most persistent version of several rumors was that a man loitering outside Il Duce's spacious estate was asked by a guard to identify himself. Thereupon, the report said, the man drew a pistol from his trousers pocket, said, "take this to your master," and shot the guard in the groin.

According to this version the shooting occurred shortly after the fascist grand council meeting Wednesday night at the Palazzo Venezia, where Mussolini had his down-town offices. The premier had presided at the meeting.

Police Seek Men Who Robbed Jewelry Store

Madison—(P)—Police today sought two men for the daylight theft of two watches from a downtown jewelry store operated by Rudolph Stein. A third man was captured in a chase by a police officer who fired several warning shots. He said his name was Frank Kuczek, 21, of Chicago, and told detectives he did not know the other two planned to steal the watches when he entered the store with them.

Man Kidnaped At New London, Robbed of Cash

Pair Forces Henry Kitzman to Drive Car To Crandon

$25 IS STOLEN

Abduction Is Second Reported in City in Two Weeks

New London—(P)—The second case of kidnaping in New London within two weeks was reported to New London police yesterday.

Henry Kitzman, 455 Shawano street, told police yesterday afternoon he had been forced at the point of a gun to drive two men to Crandon Wednesday night and was relieved of $25 in cash by the pair.

He gave his story to police shortly after returning to New London yesterday noon and Chief Harry D. Macklin immediately notified authorities at Crandon.

Earl Curry, route 1, New London trucker, was the victim of a hitchhiker robbery early last week, police reported. He picked up a man and a woman on Highway 45 just north of the city about 5 o'clock in the afternoon and was ordered at the point of a gun to drive the couple to Shawano where his cash about $5, was taken and he was allowed to return. He reached home about 7:30 in the evening. No clue to the identity of the hikers was found.

Told to Drive

Kitzman told police he was accosted by two men on North Water street about 8:30 Wednesday night and ordered to drive as they directed. The traveled Highway 25 to Crandon, he said, where they left him early in the morning and warned him to return without notifying anyone. They stopped for gas somewhere near Shawano, he said.

The kidnaped man described his unwelcome passengers as about 33 and 22 years old. The older was of dark complexion, brown hair, long face, about 5 feet, 7 inches tall, weighing about 165 pounds. He wore a black hat, dark overcoat, high-cut shoes and britches. The younger was also dark with black wavy hair, heavy eyebrows and a round face, about six feet tall and weighing 180 pounds. He also wore dark clothes, an overcoat, hat and trousers.

Party Lines in Senate Split on 2 Resolutions

Seaway Treaty and Pension Proposals Recalled From Committee

REFUSE TO ADJOURN

Republican, 5 Democrats Vote With Progressive Bloc

Madison—(P)—Party lines split in the senate today as two resolutions relating to the St. Lawrence-Great Lakes seaway treaty and the Townsend $200-a-month bill were recalled from the committee on legislative procedure, its so-called "graveyard."

Beating down a move to adjourn, 15 to 14, the senate adopted a motion by Philip E. Nelson (P), Maple, to return his St. Lawrence waterway resolution to the floor. The vote was 16 to 13, with Bernhard Gettelman (R), Milwaukee, and five Democrats joining the Progressive bloc.

With the Nelson resolution referred to the committee on state and local government for public hearing, Gettelman was able to gain unanimous consent to transfer his Townsend resolution to the judiciary committee.

Gettelman criticized his Republican colleagues, stating they had reversed their campaign promises to "give the people a chance to be heard."

"Servants of People"

"Nelson is a better Republican than the Republicans in this house when he tries to gain a hearing for these resolutions," Gettelman said. "I want to tell the senators they are servants of the people, not their bosses."

By a voice vote, the senate endorsed a bill by Allen J. Busby (P), Milwaukee, allowing judges to revoke tavern licenses for a first offense. Now it requires two offenses before a local governing body can void a liquor sale permit.

A bill by Conrad Shearer (R), Kenosha, allowing unexpired terms of United States senators to be filled by gubernatorial appointment instead of special election was laid over to Tuesday's calendar.

The senate also referred to the joint finance committee a bill by Oscar S. Paulson (P), La Crosse, lowering the interest rate on delinquent property taxes from nine and six-tenths to six per cent a year. The bill previously had been engrossed.

Envoy to Germany Offers Testimony At Secret Hearing

Grew Asks Japs to Explain Occupation Of Island

VERBAL INTERVIEW

Tokio Reply Similar to Those Given Britain, France

Tokio—(P)—United States Ambassador Joseph C. Grew asked the Japanese government today for an explanation of the Japanese navy's occupation of Hainan, Chinese island some 750 miles west of the Philippine islands.

The request was made orally in an interview with Foreign Minister Hachiro Arita and followed by a few days similar requests by the French and British ambassadors to Tokyo.

It was understood that Arita's reply was similar to those he gave Monday and Tuesday to Charles Arsene Henry and Sir Robert L. Craigie, French and British envoys respectively, that the occupation was for military purposes and also to tighten the Japanese navy's blockade of the China coast.

(Japanese last Friday began their occupation of Hainan, an island of 13,166 square miles and separated from the Chinese mainland by Hainan strait, 15 miles at its narrowest points.)

Americans Safe

(The United States destroyer John D. Edwards returned from the island to Hong Kong today after confirming that 10 Americans at Hoihow and Kiangchow, two cities occupied by the Japanese last week, were safe.)

Fifteen other Americans were in Kachek and Nodoca, which a Shanghai dispatch said the Japanese still had not occupied.

(The Japanese navy completes its occupation of Hainan, Japan will hold a 3,000-mile island chain stretching from Sakhalin southward through the Japanese archipelago to Hainan.)

(Hainan is 150 miles from French Indo-China and on Britain's vital route between Hong Kong and strategic Singapore.)

(French sources have held that the Japanese occupation violated repeated promises to France and Britain.)

SUES FOR SLANDER

Called before a Georgia legislative investigating committee, L. W. "Chip" Robert (above), secretary of the National Democratic committee, denied that he had gained state contracts for his architectural and engineering firm at an extraordinarily high fee. The charges were made by State Representative DeLacey Allen. Robert sued Allen for $50,000, charging slander.

Evades Statement on Present Air Power Of Reich

Washington—(P)—The house naval committee formally approved a $52,000 naval air base program today, including a controversial $5,000,000 item for improving aviation facilities at the Pacific island of Guam.

Before recommending the bill to the house, however, the committee agreed unanimously to defer decision on the location for a proposed $15,171,000 southeastern naval air base until April 18, to give the navy time to restudy the project.

Congressman Shannon (D-Mo.) cast the only vote against recommending the bill. He said he did so because the Guam project was included.

Mussolini and Royalty Attend Mass for Pontiff

Day of Official Mourning Is Observed in All Italy

Rome—(P)—Premier Mussolini and his ministers and King Vittorio Emanuele and Queen Elena attended a special funeral mass for Pope Pius XI today—the first such tribute by the Italian state.

The day was one of official mourning for all Italy.

The mass, attended by fewer than 2,000 persons, was celebrated in the 340-year-old church of Sant'Andrea Della Valle.

The king, clad in grey-green army uniform and carrying a sword, and the queen in black with a long lace veil, sat on a dais draped with gold-trimmed, crimson tapestries. At the front of the dais was a prayer bench where they knelt from time to time.

Premier Mussolini sat alone, opposite and below the sovereigns. His ministers were arrayed behind him. He wore a grey uniform and overcoat of the fascist militia.

Diplomats Present

The premier sat almost immobile throughout the ceremony.

The king and queen were flanked by their diplomatic corps and that accredited to the Holy See. United States Ambassador William Phillips was in a front row next to the British ambassador, Lord Perth.

The sixth of nine consecutive funeral masses was sung in St. Peter's.

The three final funeral masses in St. Peter's will be celebrated by cardinals, the first tomorrow. Ildefonso Cardinal Schuster, archbishop of Milan, whom many consider a likely candidate to succeed Pope Pius, will officiate at the ninth mass Monday.

Absolution will be given by Dennis Cardinal Dougherty, archbishop of Philadelphia; George Cardinal Mundelein, archbishop of Chicago; Goncalves Cardinal Cerejeira, and the Cardinal Camerlengo, Eugenio Cardinal Pacelli.

Forty-five cardinals were in Rome today for the coming conclave to name a new pope. Seventeen others are expected in the next 10 days.

Indians on Strike In Neopit Dispute

250 Walk Out in Protest Against Deductions To Pay Debts

Neopit, Wis.—(P)—Forsaking tomahawk and war paint, Menominee Indians adopted the strike as their weapon in a dispute with one of their white brothers today.

The walkout, in which 250 workers in the Neopit lumber mills participated, was called in protest against pay deductions to meet accumulated debts.

Ralph Frederberg, Indian superintendent of the Keshena agency, explained that the tribe deducts from the Indians' pay for individual expenses such as water, light and rent. When times were hard a year or two ago, the debts were permitted to accumulate.

Frederberg said that H. W. Johannes, white manager of the mills, put through an order yesterday requiring that 40 per cent of the indebted workers' wages be deducted to pay up the old expenses.

The Indians are paid a minimum of 37 cents an hour for a 44-hour week.

Frederberg said he was acting as mediator in the dispute and expected the differences would be ironed out at conferences between the strikers and Johannes today.

The Indians, who live on a reservation surrounding the mills, are stockholders in the property. Their tribal council recently recommended Johannes' removal on the ground he had not handled the mills to the tribe's financial advantage. A tribal committee was in Washington today to ask the commissioner of Indian affairs to remove Johannes.

Cigaret Tax Bill Up Before Senate

Measure Would Raise Funds for Emergency Relief Purposes

Madison—(P)—Ernest C. Sauld (D) Pembine, today introduced a bill in the senate which would levy a 2-cent tax on every package of 20 cigarettes sold in the state after May 31 to raise funds for emergency relief.

The bill would appropriate from the state's general fund $300,000 to continue relief aid until June 30, 1939. $3,000,000 for the next fiscal year and $1,400,000 for the year ending June 30, 1941.

Enforcement of the law would be vested in the beverage tax division of the state treasurer's office.

Earlier this week Assemblyman Arthur Balzer (D) West Allis sponsored a bill taxing cigarettes on the same basis to raise money for increased old age pensions.

Both measures also would tax cigarette papers.

Other bills introduced in the senate today were: by Gettelman (R) Milwaukee: authorizing the conservation department to license Christmas tree dealers.

By Sauld: Prohibiting motor vehicles with a gross weight of more than 24,000 pounds from using state highways.

By the judiciary committee: classifying trackless trolleys as street cars, not motor vehicles.

By the judiciary committee: Requiring necessity for contractors on public works to include names of sub-contractors in their bids.

Referendum Plan Is Defeated in Assembly

Madison—(P)—By a margin of one vote the assembly today rejected a joint resolution calling for a state-wide referendum on the question of non-partisan election of county officers. The vote was 43 to 42.

Paul Alfonsi, (P) Pence, criticized the resolution on the ground it did not make clear whether the non-partisan election would be held in April or in November along with state officers. He contended party politics would enter the election, "non-partisan or not" if held in November.

Authors of the resolution, Palmer F. Daugs, (D), Ft. Atkinson and Alfred C. Grosvenor, (D), Kenosha, claimed the counties of the state wanted non-partisan elections and should have a change to voice their opinion on the subject.

Democratic Senators Hoping Roosevelt Will Make Bid for Party Peace When He Returns

Washington—(P)—Worried about the 1940 possibilities of a split in their ranks, several Democratic senators said today they hoped President Roosevelt would bid for party peace when he returns next month from his Caribbean cruise.

Although not suggesting any specific course, Senator Brown (D-Mich.) explained that middle-of-the-road Democratic senators had expressed a wish for harmony.

"I believe conditions are ripe for an attempt to get the somewhat divergent factions of the party to get together and solidify the party for the 1940 battle," Brown said.

One anti-administration Democrat declared any successful harmony move would have to be initiated by the White House.

Insurance Company President Testifies At Monopoly Hearing

Washington—(P)—The monopoly committee heard testimony today that the Northwestern Mutual Life Insurance company frequently has refused to select as directors men who might have a "conflict of interest" because of their business connections.

Michael Cleary, president of the big Milwaukee concern, testified that in making up the administration's slate of candidates for the board of directors, there had been cases where names of bankers, investment brokers, utility executives, lawyers and others had been rejected on the ground there might be "embarrassment" in the insurance company's relationships with the prospective directors' firms.

"We probably were super-cautious but—" he told the committee with a shrug.

Cleary explained that policy-holders elected the company's directors. So far as he knew, he said, no independent slate of candidates had ever been nominated to oppose the "administration" ticket.

William Chesbrough, Former State G.A.R. Commander, Succumbs

Waupun—(P)—William Henry Chesbrough, 94, former department commander of the Wisconsin Grand Army of the Republic, died at 11:45 this morning at the Wisconsin Veterans home. He had been ill a week with heart trouble.

He was born Dec. 19, 1844, at Pulaski, N. Y., and served with Company A, 40th Wisconsin Volunteer Infantry from May 4, 1864, to October, 1864. He was adjutant of the L. H. D. Crane post No. 64, Grand Army of the Republic and assistant adjutant general and colonel of the Wisconsin G.A.R.

600 Families Under Care of Red Cross

Paducah, Ky.—(P)—More than 600 flood-stricken families in western Kentucky were under the care of the Red Cross today.

Mess Ruth Riley, field worker, reported more families were being forced to move daily as the advancing crests rolled down the Ohio, Tennessee and Cumberland rivers, pushed water farther into the lowlands.

Paducah, expecting the crest of the Ohio flood to reach there Sunday at around 50 feet, had a reading today of 48.1 feet at 7 a. m. 51 feet above flood stage. Many low sections were under water.

West Bend Indigents Must Work for Food

West Bend—(P)—Relief clients here will be obliged to work for their food under terms of a new ordinance adopted by the city council. Kenneth Weiss, city clerk, said relief recipients physically able to work must "attain a credit of about $50" above immediate individual requirements before becoming eligible to draw relief, except in cases where immediate relief is necessary.

Seek Greater Aid From Illinois Police Radio

Racine—(P)—Representatives from eight Wisconsin police departments joined those of Racine yesterday in a police radio clinic. The conference sought to obtain greater cooperation from Illinois police radio stations.

Cities represented were Green Bay, Madison, Oshkosh, Elkhorn, Juneau, Kenosha, Waukegan and Milwaukee.

Prisoner Bound for Waupun. Leaps From Passenger at Neenah

Neenah—(P)—Melbourne Olson vainly attempted to escape today as special deputy sheriffs were taking him to the state prison at Waupun from Superior.

Olson raised a window and leaped from a Soo line passenger train while it stood at the Neenah station. He fled down an alley. The deputy sheriffs, Cliff Coons and Eddie Kelly, captured him about four blocks from the depot. Although handcuffed, he was subdued only after a struggle.

Olson was put back on the train and taken on to Waupun. He was "dressed in" at the prison later in the day.

Also in the party was Paul Engle under commitment to the Central State hospital at Waupun.

Congress Could Give Answers to Questions on TVA

Old Fight Between State, Citizens Still Unsolved, Lawrence Says

BY DAVID LAWRENCE
Washington—Few factors in the national scene have a greater bearing on economic recovery and especially a stimulus to the heavier industry on economic recovery, and the status of the controversy between the federal government and the electric power utilities.

What is the present situation? Can investors now furnish funds for financing electric power construction without fear of government impairment of their investments? Was the settlement between Wendell Willkie, president of the Commonwealth and Southern, a step leading to a truce, or was it merely an episode in an intermittent war?

These questions have not been clearly answered as yet from any official source, but the congress of the United States can answer them any day now by its attitude toward the furnishing of further federal funds to continue the competition between government ownership and private power companies within its marketing area merely means that the present administration now will have a sizeable region in which to apply its "yardstick" policies. The president, for example, said the other day that acquisition of the Commonwealth and Southern's properties would mean a reduction of electric light and power rates of somewhere between 20 and 30 per cent to consumers within the areas affected. If this percentage of reduction should materialize for consumers in the south, it will be important to know whether this is being achieved at the expense of northern taxpayers, or whether it is a substantial economy brought about through the supposedly greater efficiency of governmental operation.

Project Expense
The truth is, there is considerable room for difference of opinion as to the bookkeeping side of the TVA venture. If much of the expense is charged to "navigation" and if immunity from taxation for its properties by federal and state authorities is taken into consideration, then the government can certainly sell power more cheaply than can private companies.

If state socialism is introduced on a wide scale, there is every reason to believe that food and other necessities of life could also be produced more cheaply, because the government can borrow money more cheaply than can private companies, and likewise, the government does not have to pay taxes on any of its properties.

The taxpayer, of course, pays the difference in the end, but this has long been a matter of controversy, and the whole purpose of the "yardstick" program was to get at the facts about electric power rates so that the country could be intelligently informed on an issue of long standing. Now, therefore, the TVA has an area within which it can apply "yardstick" rates. There are a few private companies still to be acquired in the TVA domain, but all told, they do not amount to more than about $20,000. So, for all practical purposes, the TVA now has a free hand and accurate costs can be determined.

Investors would feel better about the future if they were to be assured that the federal government would restrict its operations to the TVA territory, or at least would delay a formulation of policy till all the facts on TVA's operations could be thoroughly canvassed by congressional committees in the next two or three years.

Competition Threat
But the threat of continued government competition has arisen in connection with the dam at Gilbertsville, Kentucky, for which about $5,000,000 was appropriated before the present session of congress. The house of representatives, the other day, declined to furnish the $100,000,000 requested for further construction, and Senator Barkley of Kentucky has already begun a fight in the senate to restore the item to the current appropriation bill. If the Gilbertsville dam should be constructed, it means the extension of governmental power operations not only into the state of Kentucky, but into southeastern Missouri, southwestern Ohio, two-thirds of Indiana and the lower half of Illinois. It means power controversies for such cities as St. Louis, Louisville, Indianapolis, all of which would be within transmission distance.

properties if the battle which has just been waged against private company investments in the TVA now is carried further north? And will owners of funds for investment feel disposed to supply the $1,000,000,000 of new equity and credit money about to be sought by private companies in various parts of the country, if the government competition is to go on unintermittedly?

These are the practical questions which are being raised in congress, and they relate to future orders for iron and steel, copper and machinery used in the building of more private power plants or in the extension of transmission and distribution facilities. There is, on the whole, a shortage of power facilities. Normal expansion has been delayed by the power controversy here. The only question is whether the government should do the building and permit certain areas to be subsidized with low rates while the taxpayers make up the deficits or pay the charges for alleged navigation expense, or whether the system of private industrial operation with federal and state regulation of rates shall prevail. The old, old fight as between the state and its citizens is still unsolved, though, if the temper of the house of representatives as recently manifested is a sign of the times, the trend is toward giving the private initiative system a chance to prove itself by withholding government competition.

NEEDY RAISE RABBITS
Los Angeles — (P) — "Unemployables" receiving relief are being trained in an unusual project here that may make them able to earn a livelihood after all. The business is breeding angora rabbits for wool. The project started with 50 rabbits 18 months ago shows a net gain of about $1,000.

Seek More Money to Carry on Work Among Badger Disabled

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau
Madison — The state legislature today was told by W. F. Faulkes, assistant state director of vocational rehabilitation service, of two paramount needs of the state's program of rehabilitation of crippled and handicapped persons:

Increased appropriations "so that the service may be offered to many eligible and feasible cases on the waiting list who can be vocationally adjusted to suitable permanent employment."

Supplementary legislation, and supplementary appropriations, to enable the state to cooperate with the counties in providing sheltered workshop and vocational instruction in the home for those physically handicapped persons who cannot be rehabilitated, and returned to regular competitive employment.

Faulkes' report to the legislature showed that during the last two years his division cared for a total of 908 persons, while 6609 persons remained on the "live roll" awaiting rehabilitation.

"A complete rehabilitation program should recognize the needs of all physically handicapped persons in our state. To provide an opportunity to every physically handicapped person to become a self-respecting and self-supporting citizen should be the objective of a state rehabilitation service."

The number of persons aided during the last biennium, and the number of those on the waiting list, in the northeastern Wisconsin counties are shown in the following table:

	Aided	Waiting
Brown	28	188
Outagamie	41	181

Calumet	1	24
Wausau	12	109
Shawano	4	102
Manitowoc	24	132

Democrats' Unity Attempts Are Tribute to Republicans

BY RAYMOND CLAPPER
Washington—Democrats didn't advertise the real meaning of their house "unity" caucus the other day but the fact is that it was a spectacular tribute to the new Republican leader of the house, Congressman Joseph Martin of Massachusetts.

Years have passed—yes, about eight long years—since the Democrats have regarded Republicans seriously. Democrats have had easy going. They have nagged Hoover, patted Landon on the back as one of their best friends, razed John Hamilton, and mocked Vandenberg. Never were the Democrats worried. They considered everything in the bag. And so it was, even after the last election when the Democrats were set back. They still had tremendous majorities in both houses of congress.

Suddenly, however, administration leaders discovered that although they had a majority of 92 in the house, the Republicans were outwitting them and outnumbering them on the floor and in committee meetings. Democrats had grown soft and quarrelsome and Joe Martin was taking advantage of the situation in a way that alarmed the White House, especially after funds for an important TVA dam were voted down. Raymond Clapper House Democratic leaders were called on the carpet by the administration, and as a result they ordered a house meeting of Democrats to pull the majority forces together.

What had happened was that Democrats were out running errands, either accidentally or on purpose, at critical moments when the house was in session, and the administration was taking a beating despite its large majority. Some of the Democrats were just too lazy to show up on the house floor, or they were showing constituents around the city, or were downtown wangling jobs for party workers. Others were out of sympathy with the administration, but not wishing to vote with the Republicans, played hooky to avoid being counted.

During the "unity" caucus, one administration member complained about the absences of Democrats. Another member retorted that perhaps it was just as well the Democrats remained absent, because had they been present they would have voted with the Republicans, making the result much worse than it was.

Barry Wants to Know Which Way Party Goes

When one Democrat told the caucus it made his heart bleed to see Democrats walking down the aisle to be counted with Republicans, and to see Democrats, after the administration was defeated on a vote, rush over to Republicans and give them congratulatory slaps on the back, another Democratic member, Barry of New York, rose to make an inquiry of majority leader Rayburn.

"How was a loyal Democrat to know which way he should vote," Barry asked, "when as in the WPA fight, the president asked for $875,000,000 and the Democratic majority of the appropriations committee recommended $150,000,000 less? Which was the true Democratic position, Roosevelt's recommendation or that of the Democratic appropriations committee?"

In reply, majority leader Rayburn talked for 10 minutes and still hasn't answered the question.

The truth is that a considerable number of house Democrats are crosswise of the White House, feel that they have not been consulted sufficiently, that their wishes have not been taken into account by Roosevelt in making recommendations, and are in numerous instances indifferent to his desires or else actually sympathetic with the opposition.

Into this situation Republican leader Martin moved so quietly and efficiently that the Democrats didn't know what had hit them until they checked up after several defeats and discovered that Martin had his men on hand when the Democrats didn't. This friendly, modest, straight-shooting newspaper publisher of North Attleboro, Mass., could, if he were built that way, stick out his chest and strut as having thus thrown such confusion into the huge Democratic majority. Any way he has received the reluctant but spectacular tribute of being the first Republican since the middle of the Hoover administration to put the fear of God into the Democratic leadership.

P. S.—The day after house Democrats were ordered to be on hand to maintain an edge over the Republicans, a count of noses on the house floor during debate on the army defense programs revealed present 42 Democrats and 45 Republicans.

Supervisors Deny $4,000 Request to Buy Grignon Home

Name Investment Committee for Courthouse Building Fund

The county board at its closing mid-winter session this morning voted down a resolution appropriating $4,000 to the Outagamie County Pioneer and Historical society to be used toward the purchase of the old Grignon home at Kaukauna and named the executive committee as an investment committee for the courthouse building fund, making it irrevocable and preventing the county borrowing from it.

A resolution to place the fire insurance premiums on county buildings in the courthouse building fund was laid over until the May session.

An appropriation of $4,000 to the historical society was made by the county board in March 1937 upon the condition that the city of Kaukauna appropriate a like sum for the purchase of the Grignon home. The money was not given, however, as Kaukauna did not make an appropriation.

Under the new proposal submitted to the board this morning the historical society planned to secure the additional funds needed for the purchase through popular subscription. Sarto Balliet, secretary of the society, said that the organization's option on the home expires on April 1. The society spent about $500 last year to make repairs and pay interest on the mortgage, he said.

Purchase Price
The purchase price of $8,000, he said, included the furnishings and old letters and documents.

The proposed county appropriation for the purchase would consist of $2,000 in cash and the collection of $1,500 for old age pension payments against the property and $471.39 in taxes. The resolution was lost by a vote of 21 to 19.

Borrowing Explained
R. J. Pusch of the J. A. Dettman auditing firm explained the circumstances regarding the loans. In December of 1937, he said, the county found it necessary to borrow some money and instead of getting $40,000 from the bank, the money due to the trust fund was not repaid. Later the matter of building a new courthouse was pending and it was deemed advisable not to invest the money and later amounts that came in so that in case a new building was built the funds would be in cash. As a matter of bookkeeping record the chairman and clerk gave notes to the fund, Pusch said.

The board this week made provisions for paying the money back into the fund. The county also owes the fund $38,000 which was borrowed to balance the 1933 budget.

Supervisor Arthur Zuitches, Seymour, said the resolution regarding placing of fire insurance premiums in the courthouse fund was introduced only to get an expression on the matter from the board. Supervisor Thomas Long, Appleton, said that the insurance committee is doing its best to save the county money, but to drop all the fire insurance for the plan would be hazardous.

Supervisor Mike Jacobs, Appleton, termed the proposal a joke. Chairman Mike Mack said the matter might become a serious study and suggested that it be laid over until the May meeting.

School Programs
The board adopted a resolution asking superintendents of schools in the county, cities and villages to instruct teachers to hold 30-minute citizenship programs in the schools in observance of the inauguration of President George Washington 150 years ago on April 30.

Circuit Judge Edgar V. Werner spoke briefly on citizenship and defined a good citizen as one who always is willing and ready to make sacrifices to advance the common welfare and to dedicate his wisdom and intelligence to civic good.

He said such programs as proposed in the resolution are needed as there is a present trend toward the disregard of religion, law and government. There is need for co-operation, he said, if the citizens are to keep the liberties they now enjoy.

Will Attend School
Jack Frenz, county traffic officer, was authorized to attend the national training academy of the federal bureau of investigation at Washington in January, February and March 1940. He will be paid his regular salary during the months but must pay his own expenses while attending the school.

Pair Denies Charge Of Damaging Property

DeForest Meyer and Buddy Ruple, town of Greenville, pleaded not guilty of malicious destruction of property when they appeared before Judge Thomas H. Ryan in municipal court yesterday afternoon. Trial was set for 10 o'clock Monday morning. Bond of $500 was set for each. The pair is charged with damaging an automobile owned by Sylvester Freiburger, Hortonville, in the town of Hortonville on Dec. 10.

Fair and Milder, Weatherman Says

24-Hour Low Is 3 Above Zero: Fresh Snow Covers City

The weatherman sounded off optimistically today, predicting fair skies and milder temperatures for Appleton and the state in general tonight and tomorrow as Old Man Winter restored the mercury to a more comfortable places.

A 3-above reading at 7 o'clock this morning was the 24-hour low in Appleton, according to charts at the Wisconsin Michigan Power company. By 12:30 this afternoon the thermometer had advanced to 19 above.

Fresh snow covered the city and countryside today following last night's generous fall. Precipitation during the 24-hour period ended at 9 o'clock this morning measured .26 of an inch.

The Milwaukee weather bureau reported last night's minimum recordings as follows: Park Falls -8, Superior-Duluth -6, Wausau -4, La Crosse 0, Green Bay 2, and Milwaukee 6.

Snow was general in the state last night. The fall was heaviest in the southern section. Milwaukee had 2 1/2 inches.

MRS. NELS OLSEN
Mrs. Nels Olsen, 45, a resident of Sherwood the last 25 years, died at 5:45 this morning at her home in that village after a 2-year illness. She was born in Menominee, Mich., Sept. 17, 1893. Mrs. Olsen was a member of the Christian Mothers society of Sacred Heart church at Sherwood.

Survivors are the husband; two daughters, Dorothy and Elizabeth; two sons, John and Robert; one brother, Matt Baulie, Fond du Lac; one sister, Mrs. Charles Daley, Toledo, O.

HOLLENBACH FUNERAL
The funeral of Mrs. John Hollenbach, 513 N. Appleton street, was held this morning at Wichmann funeral home with solemn requiem high mass at St. Joseph's church. Burial was in St. Joseph's cemetery chapel. Members of the Third Order of St. Francis attended.

Bearers were R. T. Gage, Leo Rechner, Anton Koehne, Sebastian Griesbach, Joseph Dohr, and Ziegfried Lehner.

HECKEL FUNERAL
The funeral of Charles Heckel, 59, 1212 W. Eighth street, will be held at 9:30 tomorrow morning at Wichmann funeral home with services at 10 o'clock at St. Mary's church. Burial will be in St. Joseph's cemetery chapel. The Holy Name society and Knights of Columbus will conduct prayer services at 8 o'clock tonight.

County Mediation Board
caused by the resignation of Stephen Peeters was deferred until May because the present mediation law expires soon and may not be reenacted.

The village of Combined Locks was granted an easement for putting an intercepting sewer along County Trunk Z to Kaukauna so that sewage from the village can be treated at the Kaukauna sewage plant.

Cancel Charge
A charge of $795.93 against the city of New London for oiling of County Trunk S in the city was cancelled and the amount charged to the highway department. The city received the oiling in exchange for its allotment of farm-to-market project stone which was used by the highway department.

District Attorney Raymond P. Dohr explained that the county board could take no action on a request of the Appleton Woman's club that fireworks be banned in the county. The matter is up to the individual towns and villages, he said.

Supervisors were invited to inspect the paving in the Fourth ward toward which the county appropriated $25,000.

The board adjourned until March 27.

Safety Council Will Buy Motion Picture Machine

Hears Reports on Speed Zones, Spot Map and Poster Program

Reports on setting up speed zones, erection of an accident spot map and a safety poster program were heard by the Outagamie County Safety council at its meeting last night at the courthouse.

Purchase of a motion picture machine to show safety pictures was authorized and steps taken to join the National Safety council.

Spotty speed zoning was not favored by the council because it was felt speed traps might result. Members discussed means of reducing accidents on old Highway 41 and of concentrating enforcement of traffic laws at points where greatest danger exists until it is cured.

Under the tentative plan outlined last night a huge spot map will be erected at the courthouse yard and will show accidents and their causes with an up-to-minute record of their number. This spot map will be so constructed that it can be mounted on a truck and shown at public gatherings throughout the county.

Henry J. Van Straten, county superintendent of schools, discussed the safety education program being carried on in the schools.

Another phase of the safety program discussed last night was that of safety posters. These posters will carry a short slogan, a reminder of some phase of safety, for each month and will be distributed to filling stations and other places of prominence to keep safety before the motorist. The slogans or reminders each month will be on lighting, mechanical defects, obedience of the law, etc.

New Young Men's Club Will be Formed at 'Y'

The board of directors of the Y. M. C. A. last night approved the organization of a new club at the "Y" for young men beyond the high school age who have spare time during the day.

Afternoon athletic activities in the gymnasium and pool and meetings under the supervision of the "Y" staff are planned. It was suggested that members of the club who wished could work out memberships in the Y. M. C. A.

It Is Said--

That one of the earliest signs of spring was seen yesterday. A large flock of geese was sighted flying north across the city. Several hundred, apparently unmindful of the cold, have been staying on the Fox river at the east end of the city. Sportsmen said that they have been in this vicinity because they find food plentiful.

That many men around town have found the new income tax blanks more easy to figure out. However, one Appleton man said today that although the blanks are more simple it is just as hard to figure out where to get the money to pay the tax.

Ammon Asserts Department Set To Absorb WAA

Claims It Could Take Over Duties Without Additional Funds

Madison—(AP)—Ralph E. Ammon, director of the department of agriculture and markets, declared yesterday that his department could take over the duties of the Wisconsin Agricultural Authority without the aid of additional funds.

Ammon made this assertion before the joint legislative finance committee which is studying the state's budget needs for the next biennium.

"Our department can do everything the Wisconsin Agricultural Authority can do," Ammon said when questioned as to the feasibility of combining the state department with the WAA.

"How much would you need in additional funds if you took over the duties of the WAA?" State Senator Taylor Brown (R), Oshkosh, asked.

"No additional funds," Ammon replied.

"The department of agriculture and markets can get as much out of $75,000 as a new department can get out of the $300,000," he added.

Brown is the author of a measure to abolish the state department of commerce.

Outlines Program
Ammon said the department would be able to function on a recommended budget of $481,360 annually for administration, bee disease education, promotion of dairy products and P. M. O. Station WLB, and WAA, adding however that he would have to abandon some cheese industry activities he had planned to extend.

"We will do our best," he said, "but we won't be able to do as much work as we would like to in the line of cheese grading and dairy plant description."

Although the governor omitted an item of $2,000 for oleomargarine inspection, Ammon said he thought, "we should continue to collect the tax."

He told the committee that $228,000 annually would be sufficient to carry on bovine tuberculosis and Bangs disease eradication, and that $45,000 a year would cover state fair expenses.

Request for Pensions
Pension Director George M. Keith submitted a memorandum to the committee asking for a biennial appropriation of $1,468,175 for old age pensions, aid to the blind and deaf, aid to dependent children, state and county administration expenses connected with the foregoing, and the state free fund for distressed counties. The governor recommended $1,722,000.

Keith said there were 44,212 pension recipients the first of this year, which number was increasing steadily at the rate of 500 a month. By the first of July, he estimated, there would be 47,000 and by July, 1941, 57,000. These boosts, he emphasized, are estimated normal increases and do not anticipate legislation lowering the age limits, permitting aliens on the rolls, or lifting liens on recipients' homesteads.

Would Help Counties
The governor's budget, Keith said, is short $1,467,200 for old age assistance, $1,211,000 for aid to dependent children, $280,000 for county administration, and $1,020,000 for the free fund.

Keith recommended that the state take over some of the burden of county administration and maintain a fund to aid financially distressed counties. He said monthly instead of quarterly payments of state aid would go far toward alleviating the distress of the counties.

Nine agricultural societies agreed to take the allotments set aside by the governor. They included: Agricultural experimental association, $4,000; horticultural society, $7,000; potato growers, $2,500; dairymen's association, $6,000; foreign type cheesemaker's association, $1,000; cheesemakers association, $600; central Wisconsin Cheesemakers Buttermakers and Dairymen's association, $500; Livestock Breeders association, $4,000; and the Horse Breeder's association, $2,000.

Seek Larger Funds
The Wisconsin Beekeepers' association and the county agricultural societies, which sponsor county fairs asked for increased budgets, the former $31,000 instead of $15,000, and the latter $200,000 instead of $134,000.

H. B. Morrow, head of the Platteville School of Mines, said he would need about $28,000 over and above

Reach Settlement in Two Damage Actions

A settlement was reached yesterday in two damage actions, one for $5,000 and the other for $2,500, which opened in municipal court of Judge Thomas H. Ryan yesterday.

Mrs. Clarence Litscher, 932 W. Summer street, sought $5,000 from Joseph Klein, 120 Second street, Kaukauna, for alleged injuries suffered in a traffic accident involving Klein's car. Mr. Litscher asked the $2,500 for expense involved in caring for his wife.

Mrs. Litscher was sitting in a parked car on County Trunk Z at Kimberly when it was struck by a car being driven by Klein on April 27, 1936.

Seventy-Six Men Are Seeking Jobs On City Council

Three Candidates Get Papers Today; Frawley Denies Candidacy

Three more candidates for political jobs took out nomination papers today in city hall and three candidates filed their petitions.

Dr. William L. Frawley, 721 Front street, for whom papers were taken out yesterday, said this morning he is not a candidate for a post on the board of education.

Joseph Strebel, 1338 W. Eighth street, took out nomination papers for both the city council and supervisory jobs in the Eighteenth ward. His only opponent for the board is John Bauer, 919 W. Lawrence street. Opposing him for the council job are Roy C. Bean, 1017 W. Eighth street, Harold Douglas, 314 Victoria street, William Kraus, 1303 W. College avenue, Charles Captain, 1208 W. Spencer street, and Arnold A. Gritzmacher, 1017 W. College avenue.

Harold Gramse, 1325 N. Alvin street, today took out papers for the county board job in the Sixth ward where he is opposed by Frank Kostitzke, 1515 N. Clark street, and Sylvester Esler, 416 W. Parkway boulevard. Gramse also is a candidate for the city council in the Sixth ward.

Five other city council candidates are Alfred Neumann, 918 N. Oneida street, who took out papers for the job in the Fifth ward. Others seeking office in the ward are Alderman Franzke, Charles H. Bauernfeind, 808 N. Superior street, and Henry R. Falk, 215 W. Commercial street.

Henry Michael Kerrigan, 733 W. Spencer street, running for alderman in the Tenth ward; Ernest H. Mueller, 412 W. Summer street, a candidate for alderman in the Seventeenth ward; and Leonard Zahnren, 516 W. Eighth street, seeking the aldermanic post in the Ninth ward, filed their papers today.

The new candidates bring the number running for city council jobs to 76 while 41 men are seeking posts on the county board.

President Off to Watch War Games On Atlantic Ocean

Boards Destroyer on Way To 10-Day Cruise In Caribbean

Aboard Roosevelt Train Enroute to Key West, Fla. —(AP)—President Roosevelt traveled southward today to watch the greatest peacetime concentration of American naval power test the eastern defenses of the fleet's life-line — the Panama canal.

Mr. Roosevelt will board the destroyer Warrington off Key West Saturday afternoon and then transfer at sea to the cruiser Houston for a 10-day journey in the Caribbean.

His exact destination has not been disclosed, but he hopes to be on hand when opposing ship and air forces make maneuvers simulating an Atlantic attack on the canal and efforts to ward it off.

On the results may hinge decisions whether to build a supplemental canal across Nicaragua or additional Panama locks for diversion of ships if existing locks should be destroyed in war.

The president already has proposed an increase of army forces in the Canal Zone, and the house has approved this step.

Engaged in the mimic warfare—to last until March 5—were 140 ships, 600 planes and more than 65,000 officers, bluejackets and Marines. Never before has such a war game force assembled in the Atlantic. This also is the first time so many aircraft have been employed.

Those traveling with the chief executive for the sea trip were Admiral William D. Leahy, chief of naval operations; Rear Admiral Ross T. McIntire, White House physician; Captain Daniel J. Callaghan, naval aide; Colonel Edwin M. Watson, military aide, and Lieutenant Commander W. L. Freseman, aide to Admiral Leahy.

William D. Hassett, acting White House secretary, went along to set up temporary office in Miami during the president's absence. He was substituting for Secretary Marvin H. McIntyre, who entered Naval hospital in Washington yesterday with an attack of intestinal gripe.

The presidential party will arrive at Florida City, 30 miles south of Miami, early Saturday.

His biennial budget of $68,000 to meet deserving pay raises and pay for additional help and school supplies.

Burton E. Nelson, president of Stout Institute, claimed he would have to cut all salaries 18 per cent if he were forced to operate on $188,000 a year as recommended by the governor instead of $221,000 he requested.

The water regulatory board and the athletic commission agreed to accept annual allotments of $10,000 and $7,500 respectively, the former representing a $5,000 reduction.

Increase in Hog Production Will Mean Low Prices

State Economists Predict Fall in Market Next Winter

Lower prices for hogs loom ahead according to a bulletin received by J. F. Magnus, Outagamie county agent, from the state department of agriculture and markets.

In fact hog production seems headed for an expansion to pre-drought year levels, according to Don S. Anderson and Irwin R. Hedges, farm economists at the University of Wisconsin. The 1938 combined spring and fall pig crop, they report, was 15 per cent larger than in 1937. Farmers plan another increase of about 21 per cent in the number of sows to farrow in the spring of 1939. It is not unlikely, they say, that the combined spring and fall pig crop in 1939 will reach 80 million head—the average for the five years prior to the drought of 1934.

Such an increase in hog production, the economists point out, will mean lower hog prices next year. Prices next winter will fall much below the levels of the current marketing season, they predict, unless consumer incomes and foreign domestic consumer demand is likely but not enough to offset the expected increase in hog marketings. The anticipated expansion in production will have little immediate effect on prices except to discourage packers to store pork and lard at the present time.

The loss of much of the foreign markets for pork products will cause an expansion of hog production to the pre-drought year levels to exert a much greater depressing influence on prices than previously, Anderson and Hedges predict. Numerous factors have combined to reduce foreign outlets for pork products. One hopeful improvement in the foreign outlet for pork products, however, is the recent trade agreement with Great Britain. That agreement which became effective January 1, 1939, removes the 10 per cent British tariff on lard imports, and increases the quota of American hams that may enter the British market duty free.

Corn Placed Too Dry in Silo May Become Moldy, Tests Show

A great deal of moldy corn silage is found in the silos throughout Wisconsin this winter, and questions have been raised as to the cause of it.

From an examination of various kinds of moldy corn silage, Gus Bohstedt, feeds authority at the college of agriculture, finds that much of the corn was put into the silo too dry.

In many cases while silo filling was begun before the rainy spell in early September, the filling was completed only after repeated delays during which the corn, in spite of the abundant moisture, ripened and dried too much for best silage. The fact that the corn which is naturally heavily seeded with mold spores was perhaps more heavily seeded than usual due to the wet weather, may in part account for the unusually heavy spoilage of corn in the silo this season. When corn is rather dry, Bohstedt reports better results if it is cut into short lengths to help it pack. Instead of cutting corn 1-inch or 2-inch in length, it is best to cut it only 1-inch or even 1/2-inch in length. It may also be necessary to play a small stream of water on to the corn as it goes through an ensilage cutter.

Discolored Silage
Unless the corn is well packed and moist, the air trapped in the silage permits high temperatures of fermentation which produce discolored silage and a loss of valuable nutrients. Much mold may be formed as a result.

At times patches of mold are found in normal silage. While the cause of such mold spots is not definitely known, Bohstedt suspects that due to uneven packing. In loosely packed spots the bacterial fermentation immediately after filling does not use up the oxygen of the air quickly enough. For that reason the molds in the warm silage start growing vigorously, and are found in spots later on. Leak in the silo wall naturally cause mold spots in the silage.

Air, humidity, and warm temperature favor the growth of molds in a silo the same as elsewhere. In very warm silage, molds may grow ahead of the daily removal of silage. Even though it is but a few inches downward each day, it makes it appear as if the whole center portion of the silo is moldy and spoiled. Because of the fact that for a foot or more next to the outside wall the silage is cool, no mold is found in that region.

Molds may have different colors—white, pink or blue. Feeding tests have shown that these different colored molds are not necessarily harmful. Without question, considerable amounts of moldy silage are fed to cattle right along with no bad results. It is best, however, to throw out the most heavily molded portions of the silage.

Vote Shows Most Folks Prefer Lean Beef Cuts

Given a chance to choose among fat, medium and lean cuts of beef, visitors at the International Livestock exposition recently showed a decided preference for the lean.

Of the more than 1,800 persons voting, 54 per cent favored the lean cut, 31 per cent chose the medium cut, and the remaining 15 per cent liked the fat cut, according to O. G. Hankins, in charge of meat investigations for the bureau of animal industry.

Approximately 70 per cent of the persons voting for the lean cut gave as their reason the economy in higher proportions of lean meat. Nearly 50 per cent of those voting for the medium cut did so because they considered it to have about the right proportions of fat and lean. Palatability factors influenced 35 per cent of those voting for the fat cut, while another 18 per cent preferred this cut because they thought it had the most "quality."

Holstein Breeders to Name Officers Tuesday

Officers of the Outagamie County Holstein Breeders association will be elected at the annual meeting at noon Tuesday, Feb. 21, at Hotel Appleton. Committee reports will be heard and a program planned for the year. Robert Geiger, fieldman for the national association, will attend the meeting.

Two Schools Hold Joint Box Social

Whispering Pines Scout Troop Sponsors Card Party

Brookside and Hillsdale schools held a joint box social and card party recently, prizes for the best boxes going to Lola Mae Buss and Irene Bayer. Schafkopf prizes were won by Marian Wunderlich, J. Plutz, Norman Felauer and Ray Ashman.

Ted Timmers and Mrs. R. Manthion won prizes at schafkopf at the benefit card party given by Whispering Pines Boy Scout troop 49 Wednesday night at the school. Six tables were in play. The committee included Mrs. E. M. Roy, Cornelius Meyer and Leo Wilk. Mrs. Earl Bowers and Mrs. Meyer acted on the lunch committee.

Twenty-two tables of cards were in play at the card party given by Young Ladies sodality of St. Mary Catholic church, Greenville, Tuesday night at the school hall. Schafkopf awards went to Roman Tennen and George Lippert and the prize at schmeer was won by Mrs. Conrad Becher. There will be another party next Tuesday. Miss Leona Reimer and Miss Henrietta Fassbender are in charge of the series.

A committee of girls of Pleasant Corners 4-H club met last night at the home of Mrs. Leo Schreiter, Greenville, to make arrangements for resuming regular meetings of the group. Those present were the Misses Bernice Becher, Norana and Nathalie Trauba and Louis Schreiter.

Mr. and Mrs. Leo Schreiter, Greenville, attended the Wisconsin Retail Lumbermen's convention at Milwaukee Tuesday and Wednesday.

IMPLEMENT SHOW

Farmers in the Appleton area attended the Allus-Chalmers farm implement show at Eagles hall Wednesday. The Koehnke and Fuerst company, Appleton, was in charge of the program. A lunch was served at noon.

State Ranks Second In Pickle Production

Wisconsin growers last year raised a crop of cucumbers for pickles valued at $388,000, according to estimates of the crop reporting service received by J. F. Magnus, Outagamie county agricultural agent.

As the leading state in the production of canning crops, Wisconsin ranks second in the production of cucumbers for pickles. Because of the large stocks of pickles from the 1937 canning season, cucumber growers reduced their 1938 acreage materially, and cucumber production last year was much below that of the previous year.

Estimates show that there were about 8,400 acres of cucumbers in the state last year. The 1937 acreage was estimated at 17,000 acres. Although the yield per acre was considerably better than reported for 1937, the 1938 cucumber crop was estimated at 647,000 bushels compared with 1,037,000 bushels harvested in 1937 when the acreage was much larger.

Cucumber growers last year received an average of 60 cents per bushel compared with 65 cents per bushel for the 1937 crop. Estimates show that the 1937 crop was valued at $622,000.

2,000 Take Part in Dairy Sales Contest

More than 2,000 suggestions from all parts of the country were received in the dairy advertising contest conducted by the state department of agriculture and markets. It was announced this week. The youngest contestant was a 9-year-old boy. With but a single exception the 43 prize winners were from Wisconsin. Winning entries will be used by the department in furthering the use of Wisconsin's dairy products. Carl Edward Feltes, Milwaukee, won first prize in the newspaper and magazine division. Mrs. E. B. Walsh, Lodi, took first prize for the best sales letter. Maurice B. Ferstard, Milwaukee, was first in the billboard division.

Pig With 3 Eyes And 2 Mouths Born On Conrad Farm

Shleton—A freak pig was born on the farm of William Conrad, route 2, Shleton, which has two mouths and three eyes. The mouths are side by side and open and close at the same time. One eye is in the middle of the forehead and on each side. The pig is four days old and doing nicely.

Gets Second Permit Of Year for New Home

Lawrence Bauer, route 2, Appleton, Thursday was given a permit to build a new home at 1425 S. Memorial drive. The permit was the second granted this year for a new house, the building inspector said. The house will be 24 feet wide and 30 feet long while the garage will be 12 by 20 feet. Cost is estimated at $5,000.

A permit to build a porch and remodel the interior of his home was given to John Eickman, 709 E. Roosevelt street. Cost of the work is estimated at $200.

Forty-eight Americans, 164 Swiss 65 Hollanders and 70 Frenchmen live at the Portuguese colony in Africa, Mozambique.

E. L. Chambers, state entomologist, cautions in a bulletin received by J. F. Magnus, Outagamie county agent.

Reports are frequently received, he said, where purchasers find later in the season that they have been "stung" because the colonies are infected with American foul brood, a fatal disease to the young bees.

Birthday Party Given At Cicero Residence

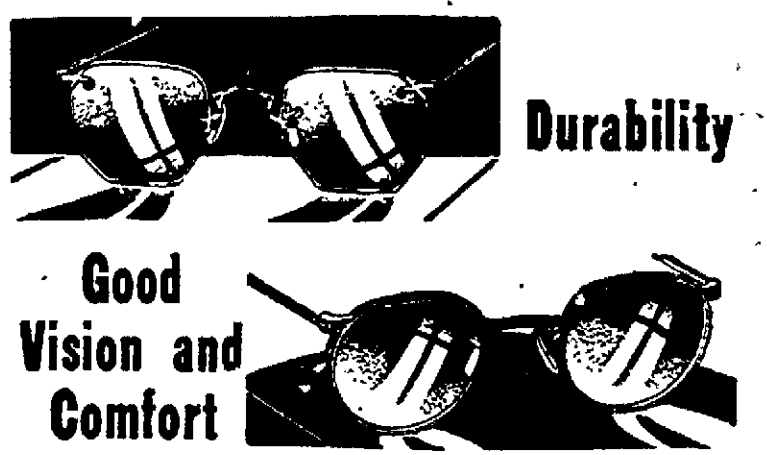

Cicero—Halmuth Noack was honored by friends and relatives at a birthday party Monday at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Noack of Cicero. The evening was spent playing cards and other games. Lunch was served.

Walter Mueller is a patient at the Bellin Memorial hospital, Green Bay.

A STORY OF THE SOLDIER AND THE ORATORS

Pedro was a Barcelona cobbler. So well had he perfected himself in the art of mending footwear that customers came long distances for his services. And Pedro worked long hours happily because his heart beat warmly for his wife and son, little Manuel, who was but two years of age when civil war broke out with all the suddenness of a thunderclap. Pedro had not been carefully educated. Spanish politics had been a source of great confusion to him. He was glad to see the king go because times were poor, customers grumbled and talked about liberty, and it occurred to Pedro that liberty would be sweet. He never thought it might be dangerous. Eventually Pedro became a soldier in the Loyalist army. And he was just as good a machine-gunner as he had been a cobbler. He was fired by all the stories of the treachery of the Rebels. He hardly thought people could be so villainous. And besides the future of his precious son was at stake. Pedro loved oratory. He was thrilled by the sight of the big, brave Russians who came so far just to help him and other Spaniards in distress. And Pedro could not understand how the Church had suddenly become so vicious. The fiery orators told that the church cellars were filled with gold, stacks of golden coins, piles of golden bars. At first Pedro had a faint doubt about this charge but he was too enamored of oratory to doubt it for long. And then Pedro saw all the great. There was President Azana, a long list of Premiers and Ministers clear down to Negrin. And they were such polished orators. Pedro, with other common soldiers, would even pass up the chance for a cigarette to gaze upon them and listen to their treasured words. Yes, his little Manuel must become an orator. In the sweet by-and-bye when freedom and safety were assured, the gate to success and greatness would be open to all. Had not the orators so declared? It never occurred to Pedro to doubt the orators. One might as well dispute the angels. Had he not heard President Azana swear by high Heaven "They shall not pass"? Did he not drink in with cool relish Premier Negrin's explanation of Franco's advance, how it had been permitted just to lead the stupid dolt into a trap, and then, Whack! they would crush him? And had he not heard in high fervor and admiration many of the lesser Ministers promise that Franco would never take Catalonia except "over our dead bodies." What splendid men those orators were, thought Pedro. How brave, and true, and what a great fortune to Barcelona that it held them. Their eyes glinted fire, their frames shook with determination and their voices, Ah, the honey of their voices Pedro would remember forever as a fitting compensation for his weary hours on dusty roads and in battle. Things would certainly always be well with such protectors as those orators. But things went badly at the front. Instead of being faced by cowards Pedro's companions were overwhelmed by reckless fighting men. Steadily but certainly they were being pushed back on to the city of Barcelona. In one of the lulls which comes in every prolonged warfare Pedro was given three days at home with his wife and child. He arrived only to find wreckage. The neighbors could not look him in the eye. In their misery they had lacked the heart to tell him how his wife had been slain by a bomb because she had chased little Manuel who had escaped from the bomb-proof cellar. Pedro was spared the ghastly sight, the face blown away, the tresses matted with blood. He placed Manuel in safety with a relative and returned to the battle front more highly determined than ever against what he had come to know as the barbarians. But misfortune continued at the front. The enemy was relentless and never rested. New and fresh troops were poured in day after day until the Loyalists could not even rest. Finally the retreat became something of a rout. And when soldiers lose hope, when they give up the battle, they present a pitiful and despairful sight. France would be safe, everyone said. So it was Pedro started for France, but only after obtaining the company of little Manuel, the apple of his eye. Even after they quit Barcelona there was no rest. Did Franco's troops never sleep? Occasionally there was a scrap of food, but no rest and no shelter. With his now four-year-old son in his arms and his rifle long since slung away Pedro trudged north to France and safety. The roads were hard and frozen. The winds were bitterly cold. They stung his flesh through his garments and Manuel cried and shivered. When Pedro's despair was near the breaking point he observed a big car pass with President Azana and some of his relatives. Pedro was brushed out of the way. For the great orator must be saved first. Then for the first time bitterness at those who had misled him surged through Pedro's soul. And when all afternoon other cars of well-dressed, well-nourished Ministers, with frightened countenances, tumbled by him he thought of all the fine orators, the words of syrup, the courtly gestures, and expansive smiles, the magnificent promises, of how they would lead the way to victory because they were men of courage who would never dodge a risk and in case of misfortune would be the last to quit. But now poor Pedro's mind was becoming benumbed. He thought of the whole rigmarole of statements that now he had no doubt were false and of how he had been misled and befooled by sugared words. And so he stumbled on. In the morning with the first gleams of the rising sun Franco's soldiers, guns alert and ready to fire, noticed what appeared to be some of the enemy in a ditch beside the road. Approaching closer they found Pedro and Manuel, both frozen, stiff and stark. There were tears on Manuel's face, there was agony in Pedro's staring eyes. But the orators by now were far over the border in France, cooling large ladies of tasty soup and smacking their lips over rare vintage wines. They had plenty of gold with which to pay their various wages. They even had that belonging to the frozen bodies in the ditch. Perhaps this story should not be repeated just because it is such an old story. But something should be said of the brave struggles of the millions of Pedros, their simple faith and confiding trust. And something more should be said of the gilded promises of the orators, their heartless hypocrites, and consuming greed for what they like best be it gold or glory, but only, of course, with a whole skin. WHAT WILL SPAIN THINK? Behind all the diplomatic, financial and armed maneuvering of European powers as Spain's civil war draws to a close there is one factor that seems to have escaped notice—the attitude of the Spanish people itself. For there is still a Spanish people. Its racial and cultural strains are varied, it is true; its wounds still gape with the blood of fraternal strife; part of it is tasting the bitterness of a defeat to which foreign legionnaires contributed in so large degree; even the victors cannot gaze upon the smoking ruin of a fair land with real satisfaction in their triumph. But Spain is still Spain—once the mightiest of empires, still with a most useful and even essential role to fill in Europe. Once peace returns and wounds are dressed, once the passage of time causes present passion to subside, what will the attitude of the Spanish people be toward outside interference? The Spaniards are proud and brave. The world has learned that during the past two and one-half years. Will this people consent to the continued presence of German and Italian troops on their soil? Will it agree to a Nazi or Fascist overlordship? Will it submit to the position of mere pawn on the chessboard of European power? There is no present answer to these questions. For Spain is still torn asunder. Still, the attitude of Spain itself is worth thinking about—an attitude that will not fail to scrutinize the acts and policies of Generalissimo Franco himself. DESERVES A BONE A Pennsylvania New Dealer named Mussmanno, who tried desperately but unsuccessfully, with the full support of The Guffey, to get Roosevelt to make him a Federal judge, says: "It would be an untruth if I were to deny my heart aches in hearing the news from Washington. At the same time, however, I wish to acknowledge with gratitude the honor conferred upon me in having my name considered for this exalted post in the nation's judiciary. "I will add that I have the utmost faith in the President and accept his decision without question. He shall always remain for me the greatest humanitarian of the age, and I will continue my loyal and unwavering support of both him and his principles. "Such unflinching dog-like loyalty and devotion will maybe yet be rewarded with a bone, eh Mussmanno? The cultivation of the super-staple Sea Island cotton, formerly confined mainly to South Carolina, Georgia and Florida has now spread to Alabama and Louisiana. The yearly cost of accidents in the United States, including loss of wages, has been estimated by the National Safety Council at $3,700,000,000.

DALE HARRISON'S In Old New York

New York—Somehow I missed the list of "Ten Outstanding Young Men in America" when it was going around a few months ago. This upsets me, for I think everyone should do his best to emulate outstanding young men, and it is very difficult to do it when one does not know whom to emulate. The "Ten Outstanding Young Men" as chosen, at the request of Temple University, Philadelphia, by Durward Howes, editor of "America's Young Men," are: Robert Taylor (movies), Senator Rush D. Holt of West Virginia, William McChesney Martin (president of the stock exchange), James Roosevelt, Thomas Dewey (New York district attorney), Herman B. Wells (president of Indiana University), Walter Edmonds (author), Warner Janssen (symphony orchestra conductor), Eddy Duchin (dance band leader), and Carl Anderson, Nobel prize winner. Right off the bat I can see a lot of young men in there I couldn't emulate even if I wanted to. Anyone who ever saw Robert Taylor and me side by side could tell at a glance that I couldn't emulate him, even with the aid of the greatest plastic surgeon in the world. It would likewise be absurd for me to hope to be a senator from West Virginia, president of the stock exchange, a Roosevelt, a district attorney, or any of the others. My best chance would lie in emulating Mr. Duchin, the band leader, on account of dance band leading looks easy. I asked Eddy the other night what it takes to be one of America's ten outstanding young men. He opined that a primary requirement would be to be young, and this lets a lot of us out immediately. Duchin will not be 30 until April 1. He said he doubted very much if he were really among the first ten outstanding young men, that he had been too busy for the last ten years to give it much thought. He said that directing an orchestra was just one part of his life. He keeps going to school, devoting his educational pursuits at present to diction and the technique of stage presence. Also he has written musical textbooks which are used throughout the country by music teachers, and is even now working on another one. Duchin is one of the few prominent dance band leaders who is rarely seen at night clubs. Other swing maestros are constantly going around to hear rival bands, but Duchin prefers to go home and study. I think if I were drawing up a list of the "Ten Outstanding Young Men of America" I might include Duchin, but there would be several deviations from Mr. Howes' list. In place of Robert Taylor I would name Darryl Zanuck, a young man still and definitely outstanding. Somewhere on the list I would want to include Lou Gehrig, the Yankee first baseman, because of his wide influence on young America. Edward Stettinius, a powerful figure in steel and still under forty, can't very well be ignored. J. Edgar Hoover is surely outstanding and would classify as young in my book. Dick Merrell, the young ocean hopper, would merit consideration. Col. Lindbergh would have to be omitted because he isn't living here now. Nor do I see any reason why Edgar (Charley McCarthy) Bergen shouldn't get a top place in somebody's list. It may or may not be significant that no outstanding young farmer comes to mind. There would seem to be something wrong with a country of 120,000,000 people to whom agriculture is vital if it is vital to someone whose name would be familiar to most people. Industry of the young Edsel Ford and Stettinius, yet both agriculture and the labor movement are weak on big names among its youth. The clergy, too, does not afford a nationally known young candidate, for most of its leaders are men of or beyond middle age. This is doubtless deeply significant, but I guess there isn't much I can do about it. (Copyright, 1939)

Looking Backward
10 YEARS AGO
Friday, Feb. 15, 1929
Approximately $1,250,000 was to be spent on highway construction in the Third division during 1929. It was reported by the division headquarters in Green Bay. Not much new work was contemplated in Outagamie county. The Garvey-Weyenberg Co. was given the contract for paving 31 miles of street in Waukegan. Notre Dame university announced it was to build a stadium costing $750,000 and seating 60,000 persons. A committee in Kaukauna was working in an effort to keep the Chicago and Northwestern railroad shops open after March 1, when the railroad company said it would close them. The committee met with Governor Walter J. Kohler to learn if he could help them. An increase in tuition for out-of-state students at the state university was being considered because the budget for operating the school was "too high." The basic tuition for out-of-state students was $124 a year. 25 YEARS AGO
Friday, Feb. 10, 1904
William Michelstetter, former banker at Seymour, died in Appleton where he had made his home for a number of years. Material was being hauled to Waverly beach where John Steidl was erecting a new pavilion. St. Paul Lutheran congregation was preparing to celebrate the seventh anniversary of the dedication of its church. Mr. and Mrs. W. O. Thiede left for Toledo to attend the silver wedding celebration of the former's sister. John Conway attended a meeting in Green Bay to raise $1,000,000 for a highway through the Fox river valley. The Green Bay group approved the plan. George Schiedermayer, Jr., was to play the lead in a play, "The Fruit of His Folly," given by the young men of St. Joseph parish.

A Bystander In Washington

Washington—Harry Hopkins, so inside informant has it, may soon wheedle Secretary Ickes out of his belligerent position in the power picture and begin a program to pacify the $15,000,000 electric industry. If the thing develops as forecast, it will mark the second time Hopkins has come out as Presidential No. 1 man in the recovery effort, while Ickes takes a rear seat. Before it was in the spending-for-prosperity effort, PWA spending was slow. WPA could spend fast, and Hopkins got most of the money. Ickes growled for months. For five years the power industry has been the New Deal's whipping boy. It came out of the prosperity period with hands dirtied by the insull debacle and was a prime target for reformists like Senator Norris and the welterweight left-wingers, Corcoran and Cohen. They first put through the public utility holding company act and then helped to pump government capital into publicly owned power production through Ickes' PWA and the Rural Electrification Administration. Now the power industry, in normal times, spends from $400,000,000 to $500,000,000 a year in plant expansions. Beginning about 1932 that type of power company spending stopped. Complaints Of Companies The companies have complained that government interference on many fronts made it impossible to get new capital, that their depression troubles have been augmented by: 1. TVA, Bonneville, and similar government power enterprises. 2. The menace of drastic reorganization enforced under the holding company act. 3. Financing by rural electrification, and, far more seriously, by Secretary Ickes of 365 municipal and regional power projects with a potential outlay of more than $125,000,000. Long ago the Securities and Exchange commission indicated it was going to deal tenderly with power companies under the holding company reorganization act. Current reports say, with the exception of Aspinwall Case and Electric, the companies and SEC are getting along with reasonable harmony. The recent $80,000,000 price paid by TVA for Commonwealth and Southern's Tennessee properties indicated that the TVA phase of the war was smoothing out. Bonneville competition is still something in the future for the Northwest. Logs In The Jam That leaves Secretary Ickes. He and his municipal power program are not the only logs in the jam. Yet we have it on good authority that PWA loans and grants for power projects create most of the complaints from companies seeking to comply with the holding company act. Here is an example cited. Two centrally located companies own operating systems which dovetail into each other like a cross-word puzzle. Under the holding company act, this "sprawling" type of organization is banned. Each unit must be regionally integrated. The head of one company was willing to trade plant for plant so each company could consolidate its holdings. The other executive balked. He said two federally financed municipal projects were growing right beside some of the property he would have to accept in trade. They are still not integrated. Like his other PWA projects, Ickes had to start his last municipal power project by last December 31. He can't start any more unless congress puts up more money. That is where Hopkins, now Secretary of Commerce, comes into the picture. But Ickes is not alone. There won't be much more municipal power money beyond that already allocated. But there are lots of municipal power advocates in congress, all grouped around Senator Norris, whose state is being cross-hatched with them. And the supposition is that Hopkins can't calm the power executives until he can assure them, among other things, that they can resume their half billion yearly expansion program without too much fear that Ickes will park a publicly financed plant right down beside them.

Under the Capitol Dome

BY JOHN WYNGAARD
Madison—The amount of gratuitous news copy which is sent to newspapers every day would surprise the ordinary newspaper subscriber. Two of the biggest sources for what the authors call "news" but which in editorial circles is known by other names are government and politicians. This week Wisconsin editors heard of another chance to get something for nothing. Alvin E. O'Konski, native of northeastern Wisconsin, teacher, politician, Henry Coalitionist, Heil Republican, orator, and lecturer, has established a news service, in the capitol. In a letter to Wisconsin editors he says the service which he will provide is available for the cost of postage only, but that it is "not subsidized in any manner whatever." In the same enclosure, the former Keweenaw teacher says that the Wisconsin Public Relations Institute "announces the availability of Prof. Alvin E. O'Konski, nationally known speaker and lecturer." O'Konski is one of the most interesting personalities in Wisconsin conservative politics. He scorns the LaFollettes with a passionate scorn. He is regarded as one of the best stump orators available, and last fall with equal heat campaigned for Henry and Hall. The returns of the latter engagement were quoted fully and impressively on the Republicans' campaign expenditures statement filed with the secretary of state. NO JOB O'Konski was reported to be considerably annoyed when the Heil people failed to offer him a job after inauguration. It was generally expected earlier that he would land on the executive office staff. In fact he was the name universally mentioned early this winter for the post of press relations secretary, because of his work in the Heil campaign before November. The job went, however, to another. GETTLEMAN One of the senate Republicans on whose vote his colleagues can never count in advance is Senator Bernard "Bennie" Gettelman, only Republican member of the upper house from metropolitan Milwaukee. Gettelman's election in Milwaukee last fall, where the Progressives showed better than in most other parts of the state, is a source of considerable personal satisfaction to him. It makes him feel independent. On several occasions he has warned his Republican majority friends that he is going to vote as he pleases, and moreover, say what he wants this session. It was Gettelman who startled the senate one morning by declaring in a biting language that the governor made some careless remarks about "old and faithful state capitol employees." It was Gettelman who, with some others, embarrassed the administration by introducing the $60 pension bill, and who appears ready to go to bat for it. Significantly, Gettelman has for years been a bosom friend of the Progressives' rising senate star, Phil Nelson. Together they stumped the state for Borah delegates to the Republican convention in 1935. Earlier in his career Gettelman was regarded as an insurgent, if not with the LaFollettes, at least sym-

Personal Health Talks

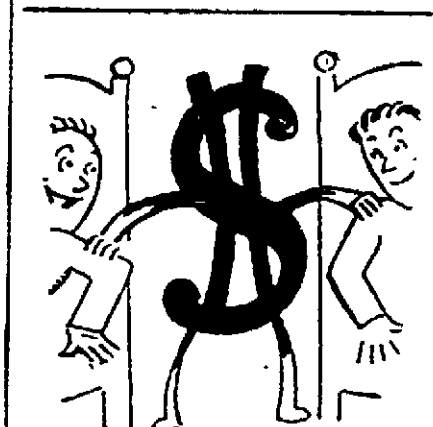

BY WILLIAM BRADY M. D.
Noted Physician and Author

WHEAT GERM
One reader sends an inquiry about "Dr. Brady's wheat germ" which, it seems, is offered to people to whom I have recommended wheat germ. I know nothing about it. Another sends a clipping in which a firm offers wheat germ "as advised by Dr. Brady." I know nothing about that either. No one has my consent to use my name to persuade people to buy something. Of course I'm not the only Dr. Brady in the country, and a pirate may readily claim he did not intend that people think I approved his goods. When you see my name so used you may be sure it is not O' Doc Brady who runs the health column in this newspaper. A dentist—guiltless fellow, the dentists—writes a letter to tell me about a fancy wheat germ which costs, believe it or not, one berry per pound tin, or maybe the container is pure aluminum or Sterling silver. Anyway the dentist has been persuaded to believe the dollar wheat germ—a dollar a pound, not a dollar a bushel—is a superior article, and probably contains more vitamin B complex than common wheat germ purchased from a grist mill at from three to six cents a pound. Cartons of wheat germ retailing for 40 cents for 25 pounds have been on sale in large drug stores in the far west for some years. An eastern milling company, sells a fine wheat germ meal for 20 cents a pound, the customer paying the parcel post or other delivery charge. Wheat germ is probably the best natural source of vitamin B complex for anybody or everybody. Altho I was not brought up in a sawmill, I like to chew some plain wheat whenever I can get some to chew, and I am equally fond of raw wheat germ. It is fine food, raw or cooked, for any one. Why people hesitate to eat it freely is one of the odd things about American life. Nations, not knowledge, govern the eating habits of the public. Three or four ounces of wheat germ daily assures a pretty adequate ration of vitamin B complex, even if none is obtained in other foods. Eat wheat germ as you would eat any cereal. Or mix it raw or cooked with any cereal or other food. Or incorporate it in any recipe calling for flour, in place of one-half of the flour the recipe calls for. Ordinary cooking or baking destroys only a small portion of the Vitamin B in wheat germ, wheat bran, or plain wheat. There isn't room here to attempt to list all the complaints that vitamin B complex prevents, alleviates or cures. All we say today is that wheat germ is good wholesome food for any and every human being. QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS
Canker Sores
Can you suggest a remedy for small white mouth sores, commonly called canker sores? (H. R. H.) Answer—Touch each sore once daily with a cotton wrapped toothpick dipped in a mixture of equal parts of glycerin and tincture of iodine. This smart for a moment, then seems to relieve the soreness. Before and after food rinse mouth gently with a warm solution of round teaspoonful boric acid in pint of boiled water. Avoid tooth brushing. Have a Chew of Wheat
On reading what you said about plain wheat, I bought two pounds of pat. to him. Some Republicans are wishing today that a "regular" could have been elected from Milwaukee last fall.

It, but find it is as hard as pebbles. So please send me some instructions how to use it etc. (W. B. O.) Answer—Send stamped envelope bearing your address, and ask for monograph "Wheat to Eat." Do not send a clipping in lieu of your request. Wash the wheat with tepid soapy water, rinse with clear water and dry. Take a teaspoonful or so as a chew. If your teeth are in fair condition there should be no difficulty about cracking it up, and after chewing a while you have a superior gum. The chewing is good for your teeth. The nutritive material you get from chewing the wheat is good for your health. (Copyright, 1939)

A Verse for Today

By Anne Campbell

I SEE MUCH BETTER
It is as if you gave my eyes to me. Because I see much better for your blindness. I hear your voice, and marvel at your kindness. And charity. I can see what your patience and your faith Have done to mold your life, and recognize How very strong your soul is, and how wise Your view of Death. When I behold you sitting in the dark, And warm myself before your spirit's light, I hope your prayers will lift me to your height, When I embark. For I can make the pilgrimage with honor. If you will send me forth, wearing your shield, Knowing one goes whom your vast courage healed Your smile upon her! (Copyright, 1939)

Training School Students to Give 3-Act Production

Feb. 26 Selected as Date for First Presentation at Morrison

Kaukauna — The date for the first presentation of "Old Fashioned Mother," 3-act production of Outagamie Rural Normal school students, has been set for Feb. 26 at Morrison, with presentations to be made later in Kaukauna and other cities.

Miss Dorothy Alt heads the cast in the role of the sentimental mother, with Robert Nissen as John Underhill, the prodigal son. The time of the play is 20 years ago, and its theme depicts a mother's love triumphant over the neglect and ingratitude of her children. Jeannette Ort and Luella Pet- it are general chairmen for the production, with Emma Kugel in charge of costumes and Florian Heube publicly manager. The director is Rineer Wenzel. A cast of 20 is rehearsing.

The leading comedy roles are played by Walter Brandt, as Jerry Gosling, a happy-go-lucky youth, Viola Ruppier as Lowly, a spinster of questionable age, and Clarence DeBruin as Brother John's Quackenbush, deacon of the church. Harrison Larson takes the role of Enoch Rone, an outcast and wanderer who later makes good.

Romance is supplied Enoch Rone and Jane Gorgas, the hired girl. Wilder Bill Pindie, the choir director in the play, is played by Georgiana Handschke, with Mari Romanesko in the part of Sukey, her 9-year old daughter. Charley Underhill, the mother's oldest son, is taken by Russell Coe, with Vera Mielke his bride in the role of Isabel Simpsco. Arnold Van Hout is Quintus Todd, the sheriff.

Birthday Menu

Washington's birthday, with its flying flags, cherries, and hatchets can be a pleasant reminder of our past history and is also a grand opportunity for entertaining.

The use of color and still more color is one way to pep up the February party. Fortunately the predominating colors of the party month, red and green, are the most brilliant and the most easily worked into food and table settings.

Informality and good food are two most important items to remember to make your party a success. A good way to be sure of serving foods hot, of saving oneself work and of establishing an informal spirit among the guests is through a buffet style meal. I suggest a buffet supper because it is the easiest way to serve a large number of people.

A menu which has both eye and appetite appeal consists of:

- Sphagetti and Chicken
- Tartar Sauce
- Tomato Jelly Asparagus Salad
- Cottage Cheese with Chives
- Hot Rolls
- Currant Jelly
- Cherry Tarts

- Spaghetti, Chicken
- 1 pkg. spaghetti 2 large onions, 4 qts. boiling water
- 1 lb. chicken, cut fine
- cooked Salt and pepper
- 1 pt. chicken 1 bay leaf
- stock 6 cloves
- 1 qt. tomatoes 1 lb. fresh mushrooms
- green peppers, rooms
- chopped fine

Cook spaghetti in boiling salted water twenty minutes. Drain. Cook tomatoes, peppers, onions, celery, bay leaf, and cloves together 30 minutes. Add salt and pepper and meat of chicken cut up. Add chicken stock and cooked spaghetti. Sauté mushrooms in butter and add. (Mushrooms may be omitted if desired.) Let mixture simmer for one hour. Serve in chafing dish with Tartar Sauce.

- Tartar Sauce
- 1 pt. mayonnaise 4 small sweet pickles, chopped
- egg, chopped 1 tbs. catsup
- small can 1 tbs. parsley
- stuffed olives, 1 tbs. capers
- chopped

- Asparagus Salad
- 2 tbsps. 2 cloves
- gelatine 1 bay leaf
- 4 tbsps. cold Dash of salt
- water 1 tsp. vinegar
- 2 cups tomatoes 1 square can (No. 2 can) green
- 1 small onion asparagus

Soak gelatine in cold water. Place tomatoes, onion, cloves, bay leaf and salt in saucepan and let simmer 15 to 20 minutes. Remove from heat, add vinegar. Strain and add the softened gelatine, stirring until it is dissolved. Add asparagus and turn into mold. Place in refrigerator to congeal. Unmold on crisp lettuce and garnish with mayonnaise. 6 to 8 servings.

A slice of sponge cake spread with jelly is a tempting dessert when served with a fruit sauce.

Explains Par Bridge Hands In World Meet

BY ELY CULBERTSON

According to English, Australian, and other foreign bridge magazines, "par contests" are becoming increasingly popular. In this form of bridge competition, players are given hands that have been previously prepared by an expert committee and are asked to bid and play these hands against a theoretical par. The source and inspiration of these contests is, of course, the annual World Bridge Olympic which will be played this year all over the world on Thursday, April 27, at 8:01 p. m. Most bridge players are thoroughly familiar with this interesting annual event, but perhaps a word of explanation is in order for the new crop of players.

The World Bridge Olympic consists of a set of hands prepared months in advance by a committee which represents the cream of American players. These sets are sent sealed to "game captains" in almost every town and city in the world. The game captain holds a local competition at which all bridge players are welcome. At the stipulated time, 8:01 p. m., April 27, the seals are broken and the hands are distributed to the various tables. In the event of a tie, the tie is broken by the Olympic headquarters in New York, where they are tabulated and compared. The best scores in each game, each state, and each country are rewarded with trophies.

As a world-wide competitive event, the Bridge Olympic is uniquely democratic in that it draws hundreds of thousands of players, instead of a gifted handful from each country. I heartily recommend that readers play in this year's event. If they cannot locate a game captain in their town or city, they have only to write for instructions to the World Bridge Olympic Committee, Park Central Hotel, New York City.

And now for a bridge hand. The following one was played in a recent team-of-four match between England and France, and led to a sensational result:

South, dealer. Both sides vulnerable.

NORTH
♠ K 10 9 8 4
♥ None
♦ A 10 6 5
♣ Q J 7 4

EAST
♠ A J 6
♦ 10 8 3
♣ 10 6 5 3 2

SOUTH
♠ K J 8 4 3 2
♥ K Q 7 2
♦ A K

The bidding at one table proceeded as follows:

South	West	North	East
Pass	1 heart	1 spade	Pass
Pass	2 hearts	Pass	3 clubs
Pass	3 hearts	Pass	Pass
Double	Pass	Pass	Pass

At this table it was West, a French player, who landed in the three heart doubled contract, vulnerable, and went down 500 points. At the other table, with England holding the East-West cards, the bidding proceeded:

South	West	North	East
1 heart	Pass	1 spade	Pass
2 hearts	Pass	2 trump	Pass
3 hearts	Double	Pass	Pass

Here, astonishingly enough, France again played a three heart doubled contract, but with the North-South hands! This time France went down 800. The bidding was, of course, incredibly bad at both tables. In the first case, West's continued heart bidding was atrocious. He had nothing like the values for his three bids. By the same token there was no particular point in East's entering the auction with his three club bid, even though he had passed on the first round. He should have kept on passing, and presumably West would have gone down only one trick, probably undoubled, at two hearts.

At the second table, the North-South bidding was even worse. North's bid of two no trump, made when void of his partner's heart suit, was indefensible. South's bidding was no better. Having shamed the requirements for an opening heart bid, the very least he could do was to look for safety on the third round by bidding three diamonds, despite the fact that he had a six card heart suit.

Beauty and You

by PATRICIA LINDSAY

It is so easy to grow careless about one's clothes during the winter months. Somehow in summer we delight in slipping into a freshly laundered dress and wouldn't dream of wearing one which did not look crisp from a recent pressing. But in winter there is a tendency to "get by" with infrequent cleanings and pressings.

This is a good week to look over your clothes. Take out all of your dresses from the closet and inspect them carefully. Do they need dry cleaning? How about fresh shields? Are all the buttons intact and the hems and cuffs? Perhaps the hems are ripped in places and require a stitch or two. And do not hang them away until you have aired them well, brushed them thoroughly and pressed them or had them cleaned.

Lingerie Next
Then get out your lingerie and mend that. Seems may be parting and straps too. Your darker undies must be dry cleaned if they are not washable—just as your gowns. There is absolutely no excuse for any girl to wear soiled underthings and if she wishes to be fresh as a daisy she will take great care that she doesn't wear soiled underthings.

Because we must wear heavier clothing in winter, than in summer, our pores can become clogged or we may at times, perspire too freely. Either condition should be corrected by a stimulating bath and the use of a reliable deodorant. If we do not take these precautions our dresses soon have a telltale odor which is easily detected by others and may be misinterpreted by ourselves. Many girls find that a bright, clean, and fresh body, from a bath, prevents their clothes from absorbing body secretions. You might try that.

Accessories Need Attention
Of course, I should not need to caution any of you about wearing soiled collars and cuffs, or other lingerie touches, on your dresses. But alas, too frequently you see girls trying to make them "do" one day more.

Handbags and gloves also should come under your inspection. And inside bands of hats. Learn to clean these at home with a bit of cleaning fluid if you cannot afford to send them out.

You'll be surprised how much more dainty you will look, and how much more self-satisfied you will feel, if you see to it all these little groomings. Freshness, or daintiness, is very appealing. And if you want to be convincing with a candid man? All men simply loathe carelessness of dress. Most of them truly do not mind what you wear (if they are fond of you) as long as it is immaculately clean and mended. Just keep that in mind!

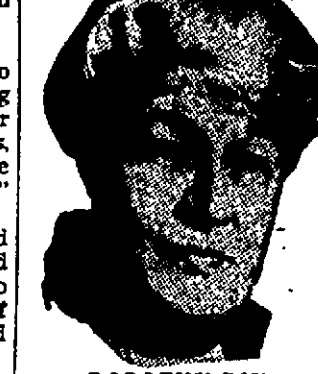

"The don'ts of Good Grooming" is a leaflet you may have by enclosing a self-addressed, stamped (3-cent) envelope with your request. Address this paper.

Consideration of Partner In Home Pays, Dix Believes

BY DOROTHY DIX

Not long ago I expressed the opinion in this column that every marriage would be a success and every home happy and peaceful if husbands and wives would treat each other with the courtesy and consideration that they show to strangers. This greatly pleased a man who wrote me as follows:

DOROTHY DIX

"I married her, didn't I? That's proof enough. Why should I praise her housekeeping and good management? She knows she would hear from me quick enough if the dinner wasn't just right and the bills small. Why should I try to amuse and entertain my wife in the evenings when I am worn out with talking trying to persuade the bank to extend by note or some business house to give me its accounts? I have nothing to gain by palavering over her."

"And why shouldn't I tell her to shut up and that she doesn't know what she is talking about when she airs some of her opinions; or that her new hat makes her look like heck; or any other home truth that occurs to me? Wives have to take what their husbands say to them, and like it."

"No, lady, you are all wrong about this lah-de-dah business in marriage. It wouldn't work. Not with men. In fact, there wouldn't be any marriages if men knew that they would have to handle their wives with as much finesse as they do a crackerjack secretary that they don't want to lose, and turn on as much charm on Friend Wife as they do on their dinner partners."

Maybe so. Nevertheless, I am still convinced that the home remedy of plain, ordinary, common politeness would do more to cure the heart trouble, from which so many people suffer, than anything else. If husbands and wives would try as hard to sell themselves to each other as they do to outsiders there would be no more married philanderers, no more discordant households, no more divorces. This is no sentimental pipe dream, impossible of realization. It is a plain, workable business proposition.

Consider: Why are people polite and considerate in their dealings with each other outside of the home? Because they have found that it pays. No merchant who was gruff and rude to his customers would succeed. No doctor could get a practice who told his patients what fools and ignoramuses he

Chapter Six
Fighting in the Bazaar

TONIGHT, after dancing till eight o'clock, they drove down to Kennedy's. Six of them had a noisy dinner party in Malver's chummy, the old bungalow which they all thought of affectionately as pleasanter than home.

They dined on the veranda. Colin, Peter's friend, balanced Petronella. Peter had invited vivacious Betty. Jean had come with Hugh Read, who looked so like a ventriloquist's doll.

A few hundred yards away, the Rangoon river lapped gently between the stems of the mangroves. The moon had not yet risen. An occasional firefly darted among the trees. The throbbing of the mill thrudged through the warm, still air.

After dinner, they piled into the car. Flares lighted the booths in the streets through which they drove too fast for safety. Multi-colored electric lights outlined the big tent beneath which Po Sein's Pwe was being held.

They entered at the back of the marquee, and looked across a field of dark heads, at the brightly lighted stage. The air was thick with the smoke of cheroots, and the mingled scents of betel nut, and the too sweet fragrant flowers the women wore in their hair.

There was no scenery. The players stood aside, waiting their turn. A Burmese girl was singing in a nasal, swaying voice, and twisting to the din of the cymbals, drums, and bells of a Burmese band. She was dressed in rich silk, decked like a little Christmas tree, with jewels and curved, wing-like shoulder pieces of gold.

At once, they were welcomed, and invited to take chairs in front of the spectators. Petronella could not help feeling that they did little to merit such honor. Soon, Jean, Betty, and Hugh were laughing and talking, irrespective of whether the rest of the audience laughed or listened in silence. The sinst-song intonation, and incomprehensible patter, between the actors, was extremely monotonous. But whatever general feelings the Burmese had towards the British, they displayed no personal hostility.

"They're Shots"
"I wish we understood," she whispered to her brother.

"So do I. I can only get words here and there," Peter agreed. "Do you hear anything?" He leaned across her and asked Colin the same question.

"Plenty!"

"Well, carry her," she fell sick herself.

"What's the matter?" she asked herself.

"Plenty!"

"We must get the girls out of this—come on, this way."

Peter and Hugh carried Jean between them. She came round, staggered to the ground and ran with them, down two streets. Pedestrians were hurrying in the opposite direction, or reinforcing the shutters of their houses and shops. There was a taxi standing abandoned beside the curb.

"In you get," ordered Peter. After crashing the strange gears, he drove them toward Betty's home.

"Now to your place, Jean," promised Peter, and swung the old vehicle into the Promote Road. Across it, barring the way, walked a line of young Indians, wearing white shandi hats.

They would not move aside. Peter hooted and drove straight for them. One man faltered, leaving a gap. He took it. As he passed, he leaned out and delivered a resounding slap on his cheek.

"Peter, you'll be murdered some day!" jittered Jean admiringly.

Anxious parents, and a disturbed bridge party, welcomed Jean thankfully. "What is happening?" We heard there was rioting. We've been getting so anxious!" bombarded the Grants.

"Those damn Corringhams and Burmans are at each other again," Hugh told them. "We cleared out of it, in that old bus, with the girls. Some ghanda caps tried to stop us. You should have heard the box Peter landed one of them on the ear."

"I'm glad I didn't," Mrs. Grant put an arm around her white-faced daughter.

Child Slow in School Should Be Studied for His Talents

BY ANGELO PATRI

Mothers have difficult problems of one kind and another with their children. No child ever born but what brought his problems into the world with him and laid them upon his mother's heart. Sometimes these problems can be solved to the complete satisfaction of everybody concerned. Sometimes sadly enough, they are never solved until death ends them.

When a child is born with a defective nervous organization he usually dies with it as defective as at first. If a brain center is missing, if a nerve tract is diseased or lost, there is no way of replacing it. Sometimes we can manage to train other centers and other tracts to take over the missing function, and sometimes we cannot. The truth is that nobody knows for a certainty, what can and what cannot be done with a child. The best any of us can do is to feel our way, guided by past experience, illumined by the experienced teaching of others, and sustained by the faith that all children are born with the desire to do right and to be right as far as in them lies.

Teachers in public and most parochial schools, have all kinds of children in their classes. They refuse none that is able to remain and take instruction. Some of these children fall again and again, in spite of all that teachers and experts can do, and they do their utmost. Such pupils are a severe strain on teachers and other pupils, and when parents blame the teachers and the experts, doctors and specialists, for not doing their duty by this child, it is unjust and, to say the least, discouraging.

The teacher never gave him a chance. "The Sister doesn't like him," "How could he get such a bad mark when she never called on him once during the term?" "Of course she couldn't get on with that teacher. She hates his religion."

"If somebody yelled you dumb could you be smart?" "Punishing a child by making him stay in and study isn't going to make him like to go to school and study. Why did she keep him in? She didn't keep anybody else."

If ever you find yourself talking like this about a failing child, just know that you are talking defensively. Just know that you are talking to hide the child's failure from yourself and him. Hiding it won't help. The first thing to do is to take out that failure and look at it harder than you ever looked at anything in all your life. You must find out why he is failing and help him to succeed. Don't waste any time in blaming anybody because it is rarely indeed, that anybody is to blame for a child's failure in school.

Have the child examined by an expert teacher, an expert psychologist, and a children's specialist. Not to get marks for him, not to get an I.Q., but to get at the state of the child's mental and physical health. With that information proceed to treat him and build up his deficiencies. Sometimes you can do it. Sometimes you cannot. But you can always try and you can be sure that in the process of trying you will discover much that is valuable in the training and education of this child.

When you have to coach, push, shove and nag a child through grade after grade, when you have to go to school and insist that he be promoted on trial while you coach him at home to make up back work, term and term again,

The WORLD OF STAMPS

A stirring, dramatic chapter in South African history—the Great Trek of the Boers a hundred years ago—is recalled and illustrated on six new stamps from this dominion. In two sets, one semi-postal, these stamps were issued on Dingaan's Day (Dec. 14), a national holiday, when the cornerstone of a memorial building was laid in Pretoria, the capital.

Dingaan was the treacherous Zulu king who lured several Voortrekker leaders after pretending friendship. His warriors massacred scores of Boers, but were finally put to rout and the defeat of Dingaan gave the emigrant farmers full possession of the new lands north of Cape Colony. It is his downfall that South Africans still celebrate.

Illustration of a postage stamp featuring a historical scene from the Great Trek.

They were unhappy in the Cape Colony, which had come under British rule in 1806, and claimed unjust treatment.

After three expeditions had been sent to spy out the land, Piet Retief, Gerrit Maritz and other leaders organized their bands and the Great Trek gradually got under way.

Several thousand set out, and many hundreds died on route, fighting the Zulus, the Matabele and the Kibobos, as they pushed into the territories that became Natal, Orange Free States and the South African Republic. The endurance, fortitude and suffering of these pioneers raised their struggle to epic proportions.

Countless skirmishes. The Voortrekker commemorative issue includes two stamps. The 1-penny rose and black shows the battered wheel of a Voortrekker wagon being dragged over rocky terrain; the 1½-penny red and blue-green shows a Voortrekker family greeting the rainbow in the land of their dreams.

The semi-postal issue includes: 1-p green and blue-green, Boers tilling the soil; 1-p carmine and black, Voortrekker wagon on a steep hill; 1½-p blue-green and brown, Chief Dingaan, seated on his throne-chair, signing the treaty with Piet Retief and his men; 3-p steel blue, monument to the Voortrekkers in central meditation with a wagon train at either side.

Alternate stamps in each sheet are inscribed in English and Afrikaans, as usual.

PLAN STAMP CONTEST. Members of the Appleton High School Philatelic society met Wednesday afternoon to formulate plans for a scrapbook contest which will begin Feb. 22 and continue until April 12. Zealous stamp collectors will gather clippings and pictures to illustrate recent stamp series.

Scrapbooks submitted to the competition will be judged by Prof. Ross Franklin, W. D. Schaefer, George Schmidt and W. O. Thiede. The executive committee of the club, including Ralph Schubert, president, Fred Treuss, vice president, Robert Rossmessl, secretary, Ralph Gertsch, auctioneer, Margaret Ogilvie, membership chairman, and Hubert Wettengel, publicity chairman, met Monday afternoon to make initial plans. Clem Ketchum, head of the science department, is faculty sponsor to the group.

Assembly Kills Bill On Daylight Savings. Madison—(7)—A bill granting counties and other local governing units the option of adopting daylight saving time was defeated in the assembly Thursday. It was introduced by Rudolph M. Schlaabach (R), LeCrosse.

The assembly engrossed and advanced toward passage a bill allowing county park commissioners in counties of 150,000 population or more the same compensation granted county board committee members. The provisions of the bill are optional.

By a vote of 54 to 41, the assembly refused to reconsider a vote by which it engrossed a bill abolishing the Wisconsin Development authority.

Cashton Will Honor Veteran Physician. Cashton, Wis.—(7)—Cashton will pay homage to Dr. C. H. Cremer at a public reception Friday night, arranged by the community's business men in recognition of the physician's 50 years of service.

Dr. Cremer, who is 74, still practices and in addition has been president of the state board of medical examiners since last July and is president of the Cashton school board.

There's Lots of Wealth In Other Departments. To those who would sell America short, to the Herbert Hoovers and all such men of little faith in the vast responsibilities of this country, I present this note of rebuke and cheer. To them, also, I cite the fact that the average asking price for a reputation which has been damaged by incorrect statement in print or on the air is $100,000 per incident, which signifies that we possess among us at least $120,000,000,000,000 of wealth in that department. Certain precious feelings and rights overlap slightly on the various legal fronts. They are exposed to risk in physical assault, libelous statement and again in the realm of love, except that in dealing with the cash value of love we must reduce the rights by half, because only ladies may be legally damaged in this field.

Our gentlemen are capable of great love and of great anguish if jilted, but their rights in this respect represent an untouched reserve.

So the population must be reckoned at only $60,000,000 in estimating this item. The customary price is $100,000 for each offense, but it must be added that a lady may be jilted again and again. However, this only complicates the picture, so I will settle for $60,000,000,000,000 as the value of love in our nation. It shows the absurdity of the outworn pretensions of the Europeans in this respect.

Collateral Suffering Is Another Treasure. Then we have the matter of collateral or referred sufferings—another majestic store of wealth which is never estimated in the nation's inventory. This is the suffering which parents sue for when their little boy tries to turn a neighbor's dog inside out and is dipped slightly on the head. It generally amounts to about $15,000 per parent, but it occurs in a vast variety of forms. All kinds of accidents cause collateral suffering or damage through "loss of services" to persons not directly injured.

This is my actuary's day off, so I cannot foot up the figures, but this rough draft should convince anyone that even when Mr. Roosevelt has spent all the money and all the deficit and all the tangible property of the nation the United States will still be rich beyond figures in treasures which are imperishable and inexhaustible.

Authorizes Manitowoc To Build Sewage Plant. Madison—(7)—The assembly in a short session Thursday passed a senate bill, 91-0, authorizing the city of Manitowoc to build a sewage disposal plant on land ceded by the state.

The bill, introduced by Senator Francis A. Yindra (D), Manitowoc now goes to the governor for signature.

The Tuttle Press company produces paper specialties, with crepe paper, napkins and party sets, and fancy gift wrappers as some of its leading items.

Because of the addition of a considerable amount of new equipment last year, the firm does not contemplate further expansion during 1939.

The firm added a multi-colored printing press, a multi-colored printing and embossing machine, and a new high speed embossing and folding machine to its equipment last year.

The Tuttle Press company employs about 185 people at the present time, which is the firm's slack season. During the busiest period—which starts in July and continues to mid-November—the employment rises to about 240. Six or seven years ago the range in the company's employment was from 100 to 140.

The company sells its products throughout the United States and in Canada, Mexico, South America, Hawaii, Philippine Islands, Bermuda, and occasionally Sweden and England.

Final Games of Card Tournament Played At Little Chute Hall

Little Chute—The final games of the card tournament of the Women's Catholic Order of Foresters were played after the business meeting Wednesday evening at the Forester hall. Grand prizes were won by Miss Gertrude Stark at bridge, Mrs. John Pynenberg and Mrs. P. J. Gloudemans at schafskopf and Mrs. Chris Vander Velden at rummy. The regular prizes were awarded Mrs. Catherine Arts and Mrs. John Huitling at schafskopf and Mrs. John G. Jansen at rummy. Miss Gertrude Stark won the prize at bridge. Plans were made to hold another tournament after the lenten season. About fifty members were present at the meeting.

Miss Dorothy Schouten of Freedom entertained the members of the bridge club at her home Monday evening. Prizes were awarded Mrs. John Biese, Miss Betty Biese and Miss Catherine Garvey. Those present were: Misses Frances and Eleanor Lucassen, Beatrice Versteeg of Little Chute; Miss Catherine Garvey, Freedom; Mrs. John Biese and Miss Betty Biese, Sniderville; Misses Helen Moehring and Alvina Melbright, Appleton.

Miss Alvina Jansen is visiting for a few days with relatives in Milwaukee.

Forty-eight tables were in play at the open card party given by the members of St. John parish at the school hall Tuesday evening.

Arnold Vander Loop, Wilson street, is confined to his home because of illness.

Circuit Instructor in Fire Fighting Resigns

J. F. Just, circuit instructor in fire fighting who has been teaching vocational classes in Appleton, Neenah-Menasha, and Kaukauna this year, has resigned to accept a position at the University of Maryland.

Carl Bertram, co-ordinator at the Appleton Vocational school, said today the classes will continue but that a successor has not yet been named.

Pegler Offers Estimate on Money Value of Our Dignity

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER. New York—There was a little backstage fuss between two members of the help in a night club in Miami. Mr. Rudy Vallee was charged with assaulting Rodney Dillard Borden. Mr. Borden is a bus boy. Everybody knows who Mr. Vallee is.

Mr. Vallee was acquitted. Mr. Borden, age 17, said Mr. Vallee hit him on the arm, bruising him, and swore at him, too. The dispatch said that, notwithstanding the acquittal, Mr. Borden contemplated suit against Mr. Vallee for $10,000. That, I assume, would be for bodily harm, shock and the indignity of it all. But the physical damage would be nominal, because it was not represented as anything more than a bruise. A boy of 17 receives bruises in football practice and in disputes with other boys and thinks nothing of them. So apparently most of the $10,000 damaged occurred to the young man's dignity and in his human right not to be done that way. He is well within his right in demanding reparation.

But I am circling for an opening of the subject of our colossal, incalculable, aggregate treasure as a nation in good repute, dignity, sensitive feelings, physical well-being, inalienable rights, peace of mind and love.

Let us assume, just to obtain a figure, that Mr. Borden, age 17, a bus boy, actually was damaged $10,000 worth in this fracas with Mr. Vallee. According to my estimates, the bruise would be scheduled at not more than 6 cents, the nominal figure.

That would leave a balance of $9,999.94 to cover the invisible wounds to Mr. Borden's spirit and rights. We have 120,000,000 people, so the American nation possesses well over $12,000,000,000,000 in feelings and the human right not to be pushed except with just provocation. And that is the minimum figure, because this victim is just a young boy and the incident, at worst, was only a trifling affair. And obviously, if Mr. Vallee had kicked the living be-jeepers out of him and sworn twice as loud and long his damage would have been much worse, possible $100,000.

So $12,000,000,000,000 is the absolute rock-bottom price of our feelings and our right not to be pushed unduly, and these treasures are not extinguished against them but re-ceive and may be damaged again and again.

There's Lots of Wealth In Other Departments. To those who would sell America short, to the Herbert Hoovers and all such men of little faith in the vast responsibilities of this country, I present this note of rebuke and cheer. To them, also, I cite the fact that the average asking price for a reputation which has been damaged by incorrect statement in print or on the air is $100,000 per incident, which signifies that we possess among us at least $120,000,000,000,000 of wealth in that department. Audience Cheers as College Choir Sings 'Old Man River' In Artist Series Performance

BY VIOLA HELLERMANN

THEY SANG A GROUP of religious songs with majesty and expression, continued with the difficult "Songs of Conquest" by Earl McDonald and then went on to Edward Grieg's lovely "Springtide," but it was "Old Man River" that brought down the house when the Lawrence college a cappella choir under the direction of Dr. Carl J. Waterman presented its annual concert Thursday night at Lawrence Memorial chapel.

Mingled with the wild applause that followed the well-known "Show-boat" song was something as close to cheering and stamping of feet as ever was heard at a concert in dignified Lawrence chapel. Appleton may have a better appreciation of classical music than many communities, but it is also human enough to find something especially appealing in a semi-popular song.

Robert Vanselow, Milwaukee, a freshman at the college, brought to the solo parts in "Old Man River" a rich and expressive voice and was largely responsible for the ovation the song received. It had to be repeated to satisfy the audience.

The only other selection which had to be repeated was also a semi-popular one, "When Day Is Done," sung as an encore in the last part of the program.

Although soloists are not headlined in the choir's program, Miss Muriel Engelland deserves mention too for her work in "My God and I," an encore to the sacred groups of songs. Well known to Appleton audiences because of her appearances as soloist in the "Messiah," her clear contralto voice is always a treat.

As usual, the choir wore black and white vestments for the first two sections of the program, which were sung in a cappella style, and then changed to formal evening wear for the last portion of the program, which consisted of choruses from operas and light operas and several encores, all accompanied by Don Gorch on the piano. Accustomed as it is to the practice, the audience gasped again, as it always does, at the colorful picture made by the beautiful formal gowns the girls wear.

Arranged Informally The picture was especially striking last night because the singers were arranged not in even semi-circular rows as they had been for the first part of the program, but informally, as if it were a house party. One girl sat near the pianist, another leaned against the piano, the others were standing in groups. The effect was dramatic.

Arranged thus the choir sang the Polovetzian dance and chorus from the opera "Prince Igor," by Alex Borodin, in which Mr. Gerlach did some masterful piano playing. Dean Waterman was evidently so pleased with the brilliance with which he performed the difficult accompaniment that he went over to Mr. Gerlach at the conclusion of the piece and shook hands with him.

The choir continued with the chorus of Philistines from the opera "Samson and Delilah," by Saint-Saens, "When Day Is Done" and the lively finale from "The Gondoliers," by Arthur Seymour Sullivan.

The sacred group which opened the program included "In the Lord Doth My Soul Rejoice," by M. Balaad, "Glory Be to God," by A. Rachmaninov, "Crucifixus," by A. Loti, two choruses from "The Peaceable Kingdom," by Randall Thompson and "Praise Ye the Name of the Lord," by A. Nikolsky.

Words of all the songs are printed on the programs, but it would be unnecessary. The choir's enunciation is so perfect that the listener can understand every word.

Negro spirituals in the program were "Oh, What a Beautiful City," "Ezekiel Saw the Wheel" and "River and Rain."

Dean Waterman has done an excellent job, as usual, in training the choir. It responds to his baton as a delicate instrument to a virtuoso, and his directing is always of the type that draws from the group everything it has to give.

He was handicapped last night by the fact that nine of his choristers were unable to sing because of colds and other illness, but the audience was unaware that there were any voices missing.

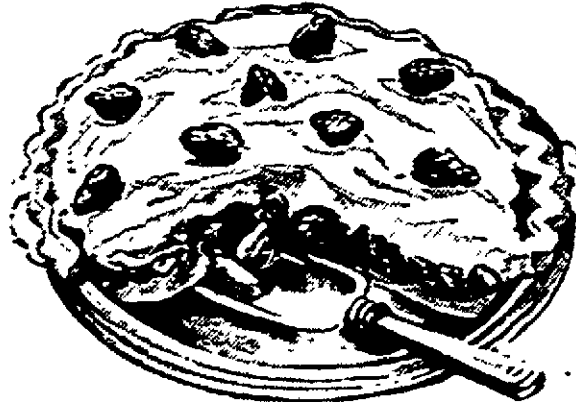

The concert was a presentation of the Community Artists Series. The final concert in the series will be given March 8 by the Lawrence Symphony orchestra under the direction of Dr. Percy Fullinwider, with Edward Dudley, American tenor, as soloist.

McKinley School Girls Conduct Ranch Party
Members of the Girls Athletic association entertained each other at a Ranch party Thursday afternoon at McKinley Junior High school. Singing, instrumental numbers and drama comprised the program. Heading the committees in charge were Rita Lutz, decorations; Helen Hietpas, refreshments; Patty Snow, Marguerite Koepke and Ruth Steudl, invitations. Miss Hazel Westphal, physical education instructor, was in charge.

Guest artist with Appleton MacDowell Male chorus for its annual spring concert April 18 will be Robert Long, above, tenor. He has appeared in concerts throughout the middle west.

Robert Long Will Be Tenor Soloist At Chorus Concert

Robert Long, tenor, will appear as guest artist with Appleton MacDowell Male chorus for its annual spring concert April 18 at Lawrence Memorial chapel. Mr. Long, who has given concerts throughout the middle west, has received excellent notices from music critics who have praised not only his artistry and musicianship but also the natural beauty of his well-schooled voice.

One critic said, "His voice is of pure tenor quality, of brilliant timbre, easily produced and admirably controlled, while his dramatic sense is so sharply defined as to be impressive in its scope."

The chorus has been holding weekly rehearsals since last fall in preparation for its fifth annual concert. The sale of associate membership tickets is now in progress, one associate membership entitling the holder to two reserved seats for the concert.

Today and Tomorrow

BY WALTER LIPPMAN

Brandeis

The long career of Louis D. Brandeis shows how much one man can do to shape the course of events. In the past forty years it has been Brandeis, more than any other single man, who has kept American progressivism from adopting the socialist, as opposed to the liberal, solution of social problems.

I realize how battered an epithet is the word liberal, how it is used nowadays as a disguise by socialists and even by communists, how often it is not these days it identifies a socialist who has not quite got the courage of his convictions. But, nevertheless, the word liberal is indispensable in discussing a career like that of Mr. Justice Brandeis. And so it must be insisted that in its sincere and accurate historic meaning, liberalism is not some half-way house on the road to socialism; it is the exact opposite of socialism both in its ideal of the good life and of the way to attain it.

The socialist would cure the abuses of property by making the government the great monopolist. The liberal would cure these same abuses by destroying private monopoly. It would do this in order to achieve the widest possible distribution of moderate-sized property in the hands of independent and responsible individuals.

To the socialist the function of government is to administer the property and labor of the people for the people's good; to the liberal the function of government is to protect the rights of the individual, among them, as Mr. Sullivan pointed out the other day, the right to own property. For the liberal knows that private property is the solid foundation of personal independence and so of human liberty.

Principal Adviser

To President Wilson
Forty years ago when Mr. Brandeis first became a national figure in the United States, men of good will, men who saw that reforms would have to be undertaken, stood at the crossroad: the choice between socialism and liberalism had to be made in Europe, those who wished to progress took the socialist solution, in this country the tendency among thinking men was to follow their example. And it was at this critical juncture that the example and the teaching of Louis D. Brandeis were immensely influential. It seems to me, decisive.

The matter was tested out in the three-cornered election of 1912: when Theodore Roosevelt and Woodrow Wilson fought their historic battle for the leadership of American progressivism. In that contest Theodore Roosevelt became the exponent, though it was contrary to his deeper instincts, of the socialist solution; he called it the New Nationalism. Wilson took the opposite line, the liberal solution, and called it the New Freedom. In that contest between what we should now call rival ideologies, Wilson's principal adviser was Brandeis. It was from the economic philosophy of Brandeis, and from his immense technical and practical competence, that Wilson drew those leading ideas and those specific measures which made the Wilson reforms liberal and not socialist.

Helped Check Acceptance of Socialist Philosophy

Since Wilson's time American progressivism has had a very different development from European progressivism. For while American social reformers have been and are still predisposed to follow the European path, and to think that to be progressive is to be progressing toward socialism, the immense intellectual and moral prestige of Brandeis has been the greatest single thing which restrained them.

None could dismiss Brandeis as a mere defender of vested wrongs. In any concrete question none could fail to see how great was his command of the facts. Thus by the influence of his example the generation of young men who have come to maturity since the war have been inoculated against the easy acceptance of the socialist philosophy. Many of those young men are now prominent in the New Deal. But for the restraining and guiding influence of Brandeis, most of them, like their opposite numbers abroad, would be socialists. Because of Brandeis, though they have often experimented with socialism, they have never done it with a clear conscience and through conviction. He has compelled them to realize the dangers, and so to hesitate, he has kept alive in them the belief that social evils can be cured by the methods of freedom.

This, it seems to me, is the historic contribution of Louis D. Brandeis to American life. In the series of reforms which he sponsored before he was appointed to the Supreme Court, he proved to be a doubting generation that the liberal solution was not only desirable but that it was feasible; as a judge he has had a part, though Holmes preceded him, in helping to keep the law flexible enough to permit the liberal solution of the social problem. But his main influence does not, I think, lie in his judicial opinions; it lies in his example and his teaching as a reformer in the pre-war era, and in the persistent effect of that example and of that teaching upon a generation of young men.

He has been the greatest anti-Socialist of our age, not in the sense of his being a buster of "reds" and a hunter of heresies, but in the real sense of his having had a positive social philosophy which is wholly opposed to socialism and its only true alternative.

Best Told in Tribute by Judge Learned Hand

The quality and temper of his philosophy can best be examined, not in his own writings, but in the tribute paid to him on his eighty-second birthday by Judge Learned Hand, of the United States Circuit Court of Appeals. For Brandeis does not have the genius of Holmes in raising his ideas to distinguished generalizations; he has been a practical reformer rather than a philosopher. But Judge Hand is like Holmes, a judge who is a philosopher, and like Holmes, he is a master of English prose.

This is how Judge Hand has described the social ideal which Brandeis has held up to his generation:

"How does he see the Good Life. He sees it, I think in terms of the dignity and the independence of the individual, to be secured by deliberately disabusing ourselves of the obsession of bigness. I see his Commonwealth of the Future as a society made up of much smaller units than those we have. The great cities will either have given place to small, or they will be so divided that within their present areas there will be many sub-cities, each self-sufficient. Speed and change will no longer infatuate us; men will be born, will live and die in the same place, perhaps in the same house. The individual will not be a wandering atom without permanent associations or local ties, ever agitated, ever seeking to better himself, ever aspiring to leave off what he is doing in the name of a progress whose pursuit irritates, without satisfying him. His tentacles will reach out to those about him and grip them hard, as they in turn will grip him.

"The fabric of these small societies will be tough; it will not be possible to pull away any part of them without leaving some of its fibres behind and tearing away something from what is left. Reputation will not depend upon manipulated publicity: it will be based upon mutual acquaintance and mutual understanding: each will be judged by those who really know him, and none will be called on to judge those whom he does not know. The individual will not be of an anonymity, a number, the empty sign of membership in a class.

"Industry will be more genial; among those who have personal contacts, discipline and enforcement will be more effective; the harsh dominion of the machine is assumed. The industrial units themselves also will be much smaller; for even technologically it is a mistake to suppose that the huge concentrations of modern times are efficient. What they seem to gain in economy of method and eliminating duplication, they lose because their management and even their comprehension pass the measure of men's minds. Responsibility cannot be successfully divorced from continuous aggregations of the direction is either without adequate information, or it lacks the initiative which only responsibility can give.

He'll be Called Most Influential Conservative

"Amenity and courtesy will be the order of that day, for at close quarters men must learn to live with mutual consideration: one cannot be socially quite intolerable when retribution comes so swiftly. There will be no dominating power, financial or political; individual differences there will be in plenty, but no one will be able to become master. Traditions will arise to correct, to chasten and to inform the hasty and crude conclusions which now sweep resistlessly over our vast undifferentiated societies. There will be no great accumulations of wealth, not only because they will be impossible in a multitude, the individual will be valued not for what he possesses, but for what he is.

"Something like this in bare outline is that society in which, I think, he believes that life would be gentle and gracious and noble and free."

This is, it is not, the American ideal of what America is meant to be. And because Louis D. Brandeis did so much more than any of his contemporaries to preserve the faith in the validity of that ideal, historians will call him, I think, the most influential American conservative of his age.

Terrors to Meet Fond du Lac Five

See Close Battle Between Fox Valley Conference Teams

TILT STARTS AT 8:15

Reserves Will Clash in Preliminary Game—
Here Tonight

FOX VALLEY CONFERENCE

	W.	L.	Pct.
Oshkosh	8	1	.889
Manitowoc	7	2	.778
Green Bay East	6	3	.667
Appleton	4	4	.500
Green Bay West	4	5	.444
Sheboygan Central	3	6	.333
Fond du Lac	2	7	.222
Sheboygan North	1	7	.125

TONIGHT'S GAMES

Fond du Lac at Appleton.
Sheboygan North at West Green Bay.
East Green Bay at Sheboygan Central.
Oshkosh at Manitowoc.

SEEKING its first Fox River Valley conference victory on a foreign court this season, Fond du Lac High school cagers will invade the new Appleton High school gymnasium at 8:15 tonight. Fond du Lac is far below Appleton in conference standings but has been a thorn in the side of its opponents this year and is expected to give the Terrors more than their share of trouble.

In other games, Oshkosh will invade Manitowoc in what may amount to a championship encounter. Green Bay East goes to Sheboygan Central and Sheboygan North will battle Green Bay West.

Coach Mike Calvano's proteges showed lots of stuff in downing Sheboygan Central last week and are in first class condition. The Cards hope to catch the Appleton quint in a "stale" period for the quint hasn't had a conference game for two weeks, last week's encounter with Sheboygan North being postponed.

Glenn Wilderman in Shape
Glenn Wilderman, Cardinal center injured the last two weeks, is expected to be back in uniform for the tilt here tonight. His brother, Ken, will be on deck as will Stan Gores, who was a member of the 1937-38 all-conference team, Chris Mathos and Ed Zoelle. The squad boasts eight lettermen and its defeats this season have been by very close margins.

Fondy will be playing a team that also had been up and down. Appleton has been playing without the full-time services of Bill Besch, who was also mentioned on the same all-conference team with Gores. When Besch was out the most, Appleton dropped some important ball games.

However, it won one or two close ones, too. One of them was in Fond du Lac in an overtime when Fraser looped in three buckets on assists from Morris. Fondy, no doubt, will be out to stop Fraser Friday.

Possible Lineup
A possible lineup for Appleton is Besch at center, Fraser and Werner at forwards, and Morris and Bailey or DeLoest at guards, depending on the condition of Bailey's nose. Buesing, Burton, and Bilek may also show.

There are five more league engagements for the Terrors but only one of them, Manitowoc, will be played in Appleton. In other words, Appleton followers will not get a chance to see their favorites for another month after Friday unless they fill up their gas tanks and follow them out of town.

Reserve teams will show in a preliminary.

Badgers are Weak In Guard Berths

Assignments Trouble Foster as Purdue Game Approaches

MADISON—Back court assignments troubled Coach Harold (Bud) Foster today as the Wisconsin basketball squad finished practice for a game here tomorrow night against Purdue.

Foster has done a lot of swapping with his guards during the season and he hasn't got set yet to the point where he can be sure a day ahead of a game who is going to play.

On call against Purdue are Bob Weigandt and John Gallagher, most rugged and experienced of available material but Weigandt has had an attack of influenza this week and Gallagher doesn't handle the ball too well.

The Badgers are hoping that John Rundell, declared ineligible at the close of the first semester, will pass a con exam tomorrow and rejoin the squad. He and Weigandt function smoothly together.

Foster is almost certain to start Dave Dupree and Andy Smith at forwards, and Byron Bell at center. The tentative Purdue lineup is Anderson and Fisher, forwards, Weber, center, and Yeager and Beretta, guards.

Chaff'n Chatter

By Gordon R. McIntyre

Friday, Feb. 17, 1939
Appleton Post-Crescent

Dear Mac,

You must have consumed most of your available reading matter by this time so I thought I'd write you a letter in hopes of breaking up the monotony of your illness.

Detailed information on the Zwick-Castilloux fight has wended its way down from Toronto and I thought you'd be interested in some of the particulars. As you already know, Phil, the Kaukauna flash, was out-pointed in a 10-round affair this week by Dave Castilloux, a leading featherweight.

Reports are that Zwick's strength was sapped by a slight cold and he weakened in the final stages of the bout. Zwick thinks he could have done better and expects to get another crack at Castilloux, probably at Milwaukee. Zwick emerged from the bout unscathed and it may have been a different story if he would have bent to his usual weight and form.

Following is what the Evening Telegram of Toronto has to say about the scrap:

To the students of the finer arts of self defense, one of the cleverest bouts in many moons topped the bi-monthly fight show at the Maple Leaf Gardens last night. The bout did not tear the house apart with toe-to-toe slugging, nor did it send the customers home talking about the power in Castilloux's or Zwick's gloves; it simply demonstrated that boxing is a game of science and skill, with the slugging and blood being a secondary consideration.

Close to 5,000 spectators sat in the Maple Leaf Gardens last evening and saw a main bout that clearly demonstrated why boxing is known as the many art. It held speed, dodging, jabbing, weaving and feinting. It did not produce a knockdown, much less a kayo, and yet it supplied all the necessary requirements that go to make up a boxing bout. Crafty age against equally crafty youth made it a bout that did not become apparent as to the winner until after the sixth round.

Jack Corcoran matched two of the best featherweights in the first ten when he brought Dave Castilloux, the winner, and Phil Zwick, the loser, into the ring last evening. He also matched two of the cleverest boys in the ring today. They did not fight like "cuties" but produced moments of toe-to-toe slugging, clever maneuvering and some hard hitting. For six rounds they boxed and fought evenly and then the younger man took the lead, and with youth and stamina on his side, he moved ahead until there was no doubt as to the winner. Castilloux by winning moved nearer the world's featherweight title.

According to The Telegram's card, Zwick took the first two rounds, lost the third, won the fourth, lost the fifth, won the sixth and then faded from the picture. Phil was not the same Phil who boxed so splendidly against Orval Drouillard months ago, but this may be attributed to the fact that Zwick has not been very active the last few months. He was the same clever Zwick, but not with the same precision in his punches or the same sting.

Castilloux kept his chin always parked behind his left shoulder and throughout the fight Zwick never got a clear shot at it. While Zwick was effective with one-two the Canadian boy would jab and then cross with a hard right and slowly but surely he wore the crafty veteran down. After a slow eighth they came out fighting but it was Castilloux who landed the hardest blows and the same in the tenth. It was a clever, artful display and though not a killer-diller as most fans like to see it was still a fine boxing exhibition.

Yours truly,
Dick Davis.

First, Third Ward Cagers Win Games

Title Battles Will be Held
At Senior High School Today

The first ward and the Third ward teams won games in the Intramural Basketball league yesterday at Appleton High school. The First ward defeated the Upper Fourth ward, 23 and 19, while the Third ward trounced the Third Ward Specials, 17 and 8.

Bob Bowers paced the First ward team with four buckets while Ray Kraft was high scorer for the Fourth ward with four field goals. The winners will meet the Lower Fourth ward for the title today.

In the other game Darrell Hussey edged three baskets to lead the Third ward team while Howard Pekarske scored two long ones to lead the Specials. The Third ward will meet the Sixth ward team for the consolation championship today.

Talbot Thinks It's Silly to Bar Mrs. Hill From 'Invitationals'

BY GAYLE TALBOT

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—Maybe I'm wrong, but it seems more than passing silly that such a grand trouper of the fairways as Mrs. Opal Hill of Kansas City should find herself barred from various "invitationals" golf tournaments around this section just because she has through necessity, become a good-willer for a sporting goods house.

In the first place, the string of winter events that permit the gal players to traipse around in the sunshine while their less talented sisters up north are practicing their putting on the hearth rug are not so very amateur, themselves.

Don't breathe it to a soul, but I have reason to suspect the grandiose hotels and clubs that sponsor these tournaments and urge the gals to come down as their guests and compete do so not with the idea of avoiding vulgar publicity.

Top-Ranking Warrior
In the second place, Mrs. Hill who has been a top-ranking warrior for something like a decade, has won most of the tournaments except the national championship and has represented this nation against England, isn't so very professional. She doesn't sell the stuff; she merely tries to get as many gals as possible interested in golf. Then, if they insist on buying the equipment, she represents it as that any fault of hers?

When I saw Mrs. Hill she just had been asked ever so sweetly by the tournament chairman of the Hotel Mammoth (shall we say?) if she would mind not playing in their event—"because we want to keep it strictly amateur, you know," Mrs. Hill said of course she wouldn't mind not playing, but she naturally was slightly burned.

Loaves to Play
"The point is," she said, "that they invited me to come down and play, and I drove all the way here from Kansas City by myself. If this had been an amateur championship of any kind I wouldn't have thought of playing. But this is an invitationals event and they invited me. Naturally I hate not to compete, for I'm playing as good golf now as I ever did."

Mrs. Hill has launched herself upon this career at the age of 45, after 15 years golfing, and except for an occasional such experience as we are discussing, she loves it. Although she does not say so, it is generally understood she was forced to turn her golfing skill to account because of the failing health of her husband.

9:30. The game was postponed last week and rescheduled for March 1 but was shifted to this evening.

Town Taxi cagers will tangle with Sinclair Oils of Kaukauna at 7:30.

PLAY DOUBLE-HEADER
Elm Tree Bakers will play a double-header at the Y. M. C. A. this evening in hopes of hanging up wins No. 31 and No. 32. At 8:30 the Automobiles from Two Rivers will try to break the winning streak while the C. Y. O. squad of Fond du Lac will tangle with the Bakers at 9:30.

Kimberly A. A. Cagers Take 1st Game of Series, 29 to 25, In Struggle at Little Chute

BY GEORGE VANDERLOOP

LITTLE CHUTE—Kimberly A. A. scored a 29 to 25 victory over Little Chute A. A. last night at St. John gym to take the first game of the home-and-home series, but the visitors knew they were in a battle as it was in the final period that they picked up a little lead to give them a breathing spell.

The locals led 4 to 3 in the first period, trailed 15 to 12 at halftime and 20 to 19 at the end of the third period, only to falter in the final five minutes of the fourth period, after Don Peeters tied up the game at 20 all.

Joe Gossens paced the invaders with four field goals and the local fans maintain that if Gossens had gone fishing with his new rod and reel which he recently received as Kimberly's outstanding cager, Kimberly would have been licked by the locals. Buck Le May had a great time parading to the free throw mark where he collared 6 of 13 free shots he received.

Lefty Wildenberg and Beany Bongers tied for scoring honors for the locals with three field goals apiece while Don Peeters scored 4 out of 5 free shots.

Many Free Throws
Little Chute converted on 9 out of 19 gift shots while the visitors collared 11 of 23 chances.

The game was played just as hard on the bleachers as on the court and some of the Kimberly sideline officials had a technical called on them by Swanke for getting too radical, and they cooled down after that.

The game opened with Beany Bongers sinking a side shot. Buck Le May scored one of two free shots, Orville Bongers fouled Bowman who converted on a free shot. Moose Van Dyke was fouled by Chub Vander Velden and converted on one of his two tries. Buck Le May scored a free toss, and Van Dyke and the Bongers both missed short shots as the quarter ended.

The second period saw Tony Jansen, Joe Versteeg and Don Peeters going into the game for the locals, while Norb Gossens and E. Vander Velden replaced B. Le May and C. Vander Velden for the invaders.

Kimberly Takes Lead
Kimberly forged into the lead 5 to 4 when Joe Gossens lofted in a set long shot, again scoring on an out-of-bounds play from Bowman for a 7 to 4 lead. Van Dyke converted on one of two gift shots, E. Vander Velden scored a gift shot for the visitors and Don Peeters scored both his tries from the foul line to leave the score 8 to 7. Vander Velden hooked a gift shot and Joe Gossens swished a long field goal to give Kimberly an 11 to 7 lead. Bowman fouled Joe Versteeg, who proceeded to miss both his tries. Peeters and Hoffkins were caught clinching and a double foul resulted with each scoring their point for no gain except the point.

Beany Bongers closed the gap with a nice side shot while Peeters had tough luck on his shots. Le May converted on two free throws, and scored another when J. Versteeg was caught holding onto Buck's pants. Tony Jansen sank a short dribble in shot as the second period ended with Kimberly in the lead, 15 to 12.

Score Is Tied
The third quarter saw Jansen getting called on blocking, so Le May scored on the free throw. Buck was fouled on an attempted short shot but missed both tries.

Peeters led Lefty Wildenberg under the hoop and the southpaw scored to trail by two points, 16 to 14. The game was being stepped up

Stockbridge Wins Right to Compete In Seymour Meet

Downs Wrightstown in Elimination Game for District Tourney

SEYMOUR—Stockbridge defeated Wrightstown, 23 to 16, in a tilt here last night for the right to enter the Class C district tournament to be staged March 1, 2, 3 and 4. Entrance of nine teams necessitated the elimination game.

Officials for the tournament will be Werner White, Appleton, and Glen Evjue, Green Bay. Coaches and principals of the schools entered will attend a dinner here at 6:30 Monday evening to complete tournament plans.

Pairings for the event are as follows: Brillion versus Seymour; Freedom versus Shiocton; Hilbert versus Stockbridge, and Hortonville versus Winneconne.

Stockbridge took a 5 to 3 lead at the end of the first quarter and showed a thin 7 to 6 edge at the halfway mark. Stockbridge increased its lead to 18 to 11 at the end of the third period. W. Vandenberg paced the winners with four buckets and one gift shot for nine points.

The box score:

Stockbridge—23	Wrightstown—16

36 Attend First Night Class for Farmers at Dale

Weekly Sessions Will be Continued on Tuesday Evening

New London—Thirty-six attended the first night school classes for farmers of the Dale area and their wives at the Dale public school Wednesday evening, according to L. M. Warner, New London High school agriculture instructor.

Sixteen men and 20 women formed classes and an invitation was extended by the Dale board of education to nearby farmers in neighboring school districts. The instruction is provided by New London vocational teachers through cooperation of the New London and Dale school boards. The Dale board has granted use of the school facilities and its members, J. C. Much, Arthur Leiby and John Leppa, will make arrangements for each meeting.

Tuesday evening was chosen as the weekly meeting night because of lenient church services on Wednesday nights. Classes will begin at 7:30. The men chose to study farm management and will begin next week with hybrid corn production, its source, the different strains and other questions. Women chose foods for study and will begin with the preparation of vegetables.

Film slides and charts will be used by Mr. Warner and Miss Mabel Nock during the course of the 10-week instruction to illustrate various topics.

Roundup for Poultry Raisers to be Held at V.F.W. Hall Tuesday

New London—A poultry raisers' roundup, the first meeting of its kind in New London, will be held by Mr. and Mrs. M. F. Abraham, proprietors of the New London Poultry Farm and Hatchery, at the Veterans of Foreign Wars hall next Tuesday, Feb. 21, from 10 o'clock in the morning until 4 o'clock in the afternoon. All poultry raisers in this territory have been invited to hear experts on poultry raising and take part in educational discussions. A free lunch will be served at noon.

Al Wislinski, poultryman, breeder and hatcheryman, will discuss buying of baby chicks, outlook for 1939, chick management, and disease prevention. A question box will be conducted and personal consultation will be offered. Mr. Wislinski was president of the Wisconsin Hatchery association for six years. Chat Hanson of Fort Atkinson will talk on chick housing and ventilation problems. Special entertainment will be offered and prizes awarded. Sick or ailing birds will be posted and the owners advised.

Summoned to Illinois By Illness of Mother

New London—Mrs. G. A. Wells of this city and Sylvester Churchill of Clintonville left yesterday morning to visit their mother, Mrs. Delilah Churchill, who was reported seriously ill at her home at Raritan, Ill. She suffered a stroke Monday.

Undergoing major operations at Community hospital yesterday were Frank White, S. Pearl street; Lucille Grawunder, 12-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Grawunder, 1203 Oakwood street; and Carl Behn, Weyauwega. Daughters were born at Community hospital Wednesday night to Mr. and Mrs. Roy Jodely, Weyauwega; Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Johnson, Shiocton; and Mr. and Mrs. Roy Sternick, Hortonville.

Capacity Crowd at Opening Session of Annual Cooking School

New London—A capacity crowd of 400 women attended the first sessions of the free cooking school sponsored at Labor hall yesterday afternoon and evening by Fay R. Smith and company of this city. Instructions were given by Miss Clara Jahns, cooking expert. Prizes for amateur programs in the evening were awarded to Melvin Myers for his guitar playing and songs and to Lois Jean Linberg for her vocal solos. Tony Budwig acted as master of ceremonies. The school will continue each afternoon and evening the rest of this week with new subjects of discussion at each class.

Students Hear Talk On National Defense

New London—Helm Hussner, president of the Appleton Reserve Officers association, spoke on national defense before the regular student assembly at Washington High school auditorium yesterday afternoon. His talk was part of the observance of National Defense week from Feb. 12 to 22.

NEW LONDON OFFICE

90 Persons Served as Dorcas Society of Methodist Church Sponsors Birthday Luncheon

New London—About 90 were served at a unique birthday luncheon served by the Dorcas society of the Methodist church at the church parlors yesterday afternoon. Twelve tables were decorated appropriately and elaborately for each month of the year and guests were seated at the table representing the month of their birthday.

Request entertainment was provided at each table. Outstanding was a mock wedding ceremony for June performed with Mrs. Phil Court as bride and Mrs. W. T. Maxted as groom. Poems readings and songs comprised the other numbers. Poems were read by Mrs. William Dent for January; Mrs. Irvin Darow for February; Mrs. Austin Drexler for March; Mrs. Carrie Hooper for April; Mrs. G. A. Vandree for July; Mrs. Earl Meiklejohn also read a list of don't applicable to the Fourth of July and Mrs. R. R. Holliday sang a vocal solo. August, September and November were portrayed by Mrs. James B. Graham and Mrs. Arnold Johnson in vocal duets; October in a reading by Mrs. Abrams; December in readings by Mrs. F. C. Andrews and Mrs. S. E. Thersens. Seasonal songs were sung as a group and girls of the Washington High school dramatics class entertained with a playlet, "Curses, Foiled Again."

Veterans of Foreign Wars Learning-Schaller post will hold the last pre-lenten dance at the V. F. W. hall Saturday night. Modern and old-time music will be furnished by a Hortonville band.

The Old Settlers club met with Mrs. Chester Allen yesterday afternoon and will meet next week with Mrs. Josephine Cline.

Mrs. Harold Shaw was a guest of the Thursday Bridge club when Mrs. Francis Werner was hostess yesterday afternoon. Mrs. Walter Stewart won the prize. Mrs. Ed Lyon will entertain next week.

The Lutheran Social club honored Mrs. Alvina Hebbe at a party at her home yesterday afternoon on the occasion of her seventy-seventh birthday anniversary. Guests in addition to club members were Mrs. Hugo Bergman, Mrs. Oscar Schneider Sr., Mrs. Edward Hebbe of Maple Creek and Mrs. Ray Nath of Clintonville. Games were played and numerous prizes awarded.

Mrs. Emil Gehrke entertained the past presidents of the American Legion auxiliary at a 1 o'clock luncheon at her home yesterday afternoon. Prizes were won by Mrs. H. E. Ehrenreich, Mrs. D. E. Egan and Mrs. A. G. VanAlstine. The latter will be hostess next month.

The auxiliary will conduct the second in its series of public card parties at the clubhouse Sunday evening. Chairman of the hostess committee are Mrs. A. C. Borchardt and Mrs. Richard Gehrke.

Athletic Coach D. N. Stacy of New London High school will be guest speaker at the regular meeting of the Congregational Young People's society at the church parlors Sunday evening. Other entertainment will consist of a reading by Miss Alice Stanley and a vocal solo by Miss Polly Hartquist.

A bake sale for Saturday, Feb. 25, at the Fehrman-Kircher store on S. Pearl street was planned by the West Side circle of the Dorcas society of the Methodist church at a meeting at the home of Mrs. M. S. Zahrt Wednesday evening. Mrs. Anthony Joubert and Mrs. Wallace Ruhsam will be in charge. The circle will meet next month at the home of Mrs. R. R. Holliday with Mrs. Phil Court assisting.

Thirteen tables of cards were in play at the social meeting of the Knights of Columbus and their ladies at the parish hall Wednesday evening and prizes were won by Mrs. Ben Bolinski and Mrs. W. H. Knapstein in bridge, Jack Muller-key and Mark Madden in schafkopf, Mr. and Mrs. Ed Ostermeier received special prizes.

The Boys Vocational club of Lincoln Junior High school held a supper meeting at the school last evening. About 25 boys brought a lunch.

Ten girls of the school have formed a girls unit and joined the boys in the lunch. Jean Smith is acting chairman of the girls.

Farm Institute Next Tuesday at Clintonville Gym

Dairy Breeding and Pastures to be Among Principal Topics

Clintonville—A farm institute will be held at the high school gymnasium at 10 o'clock Tuesday morning, Feb. 21. Prof. Arthur O. Collentine of the department of dairy husbandry at the University of Wisconsin, will talk on dairy breeding. Following his talk, there will be a general discussion.

Information on practical pastures will be given at 1:30 in the afternoon by F. V. Durelos, agronomy instructor. H. H. Jack of the Wisconsin Department of Agriculture and Markets will talk on dairy distribution and Victor H. Quick, county agent, will discuss sidelines to dairying.

Arrangements for the institute are being made by E. A. Hutchinson, instructor in vocational agriculture at Clintonville High school. The F.F.A. boys of his department are planning to give a corn-grading demonstration and will answer questions on buying seed corn.

A free lunch will be served at noon at the high school gymnasium by members of the Clintonville Association of Commerce.

The annual meeting of the Four Wheel Drive Employees' Association will take place at 9 o'clock Saturday morning, Feb. 18, at the armory. Officers will be elected and other business was transacted.

Mrs. John Winkler was hostess to twenty guests at a 1 o'clock luncheon Thursday at Hotel Marion. The afternoon was spent in playing contract bridge, Mrs. O. C. Eberhardt receiving the prize for high score.

Members of her birthday club surprised Mrs. Myron Ames with a farewell party Tuesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. George Graff. Twelve were present and cards provided entertainment, after which a luncheon was served. Mrs. Ames was presented with a gift by the club. The Ames family will move soon to a farm near Shiocton, after living in this city for the last several years.

A Valentine party entertained the Four Wheel Drive Girls club Tuesday evening at the Parkview hotel. A 7 o'clock dinner was followed by contests and games. The Misses Frances Dopsos, Helen Welter and Mildred Brackeb won prizes at "hearts," while the prizes at Chinese checkers went to the Misses Mary Esmy, Melinda Schimke, Marcella Beschta and Mrs. Ethel Chandler. Arrangements for the party were in charge of the Misses Laura Hein, Fern Strohm and Margaret Kuschel.

About 150 couples attended the annual Valentine day dance given at the armory by the Junior Woman's club. The hall was decorated in keeping with the day.

Livestock Breeders to Gather at Weyauwega

Waupaca—A 12 o'clock dinner will open the annual livestock breeders' meeting at Weyauwega, Feb. 23, at Dobbins hotel. The Waupaca County Livestock Breeders' association and the county agent, Victor Quick, are planning a special program.

H. H. Jack, department of agriculture and markets, and Ray Pallett,

Farm Institute At Scandinavia

Dairying to be Chief Topic of Discussion Next Wednesday

Waupaca—Dairying problems will be discussed at the farm institute which will be held at Scandinavia Feb. 22. A. C. Collentine, professor of animal husbandry, University of Wisconsin, will discuss the breeding program for dairymen. An open discussion will follow on questions that are of interest to dairymen.

At 12 o'clock a dinner will be served by a church organization in the basement of the Lutheran church. At 1:30 F. V. Durelos, agronomy instructor, will talk on pasture management and fertilization, and explain how the alfalfa fields can be pastured without injuring stand.

H. H. Jack, department of agriculture and markets, is to discuss dairy distribution problems while V. H. Quick, county agent, will give talks on the sidelines for the dairy farmers.

Business men of Scandinavia are cooperating with the farmers to put on this one day institute at 10 o'clock in the Community hall.

College of agriculture, are scheduled for short talks on the program. Election of the Breeders' association officers for 1939 will take place. Reservations for the dinner are in charge of Mr. Quick.

UNCLE RAY'S CORNER

A Short History of China

X-In Recent Times

The story of the Manchus shows what China can do to people who conquer their country.

Three hundred years ago, the Manchus came in. Twenty-seven years ago, a revolt broke out in China, and the last Manchu ruler was swept from the throne.

Chiang Kai Shek as a young man.

Since the revolt succeeded, we might suppose large numbers of Manchus must have lost their lives. That didn't happen for the simple reason that there were almost no Manchus left!

To keep their power, the Manchus had treated the Chinese fairly well. For a while they had soldiers in many places, full-blooded Manchu soldiers.

As time passed, the Manchu soldiers married Chinese women. At length the Manchus and Chinese were so well mixed up that it was hard to tell whether a family was one or the other.

The famous Sun Yat Sen led the revolt which ended the empire and started a republic. Many changes came, and one was the end of the pigtail. The people were told that the pigtail must go. Some didn't cut it off right away because they were fond of it, or because they feared the Manchus might come back. For this reason soldiers of the republic were placed at street corners in some cities; when a man with a pigtail came along, a soldier stepped up to him and cut off the pigtail with a sword!

If a great change takes place in a nation's government, there are likely to be years of trouble afterward. Sorrow has come to China since the Manchu dynasty ended, sorrow of many kinds.

The worst sorrow has been the invasion of the Japanese. Bombs, bullets and fire have destroyed people and cities.

The Chinese are not experts with firearms. Their leader and chief general, Chiang Kai Shek, has done as well as he could, but almost all the battles have been won by the Japanese.

We cannot tell what will be the results of the Japanese invasion, but one thing seems certain. China will live on. Her people have a history of more than 40 centuries. Time and again, before this, they have taken care of invaders.

China has suffered floods and famines, as well as invasions. People have drowned and people have starved, but the Chinese have lived on. They do not seem skillful in war, but as a race they are strong.

Hollywood — It's war between movies and radio. Darryl Zanuck, driven by the demands of exhibitors, who insist that the presence of movie stars on the airwaves keeps the people out of the theatres, is trying to take all of his big name artists out of radio. The Tyrone Power fiasco—I told you about that last week—precipitated the trouble which now threatens to stop the broadcasts of Alice Faye and Don Ameche. Other producers, put under the same pressure from exhibitors, have indicated that they will follow Zanuck's lead.

To my way of thinking, the theatre owners are making a sad mistake. They argue that the fans of Don Ameche and Nelson Eddy, for instance, stay away from the movie houses Sunday afternoons in order to hear their favorites on the air. Probably they do—but it stands to reason that when an Ameche or an Eddy picture is released those same fans rush to see it, simply because the star has been thoroughly sold to them via radio. The same is true, in the case of every other screen celebrity who has honestly won a great radio following.

The one real objection to screen stars on the air is the fact that so many of them have proved dismal flops. Radio signed them only because their names have popular appeal. The air programs of those stars have offered no competition to the theatre, but they have damaged the standing of the stars themselves as entertainers. No one will object if they fade from the air, but I think Hollywood will receive a rude jolt from Mr. and Mrs. Public if such stars as Ameche are yanked.

CUFF NOTES: Judy Garland's sniffs, which delayed the biggest scene for "Wizard of Oz," cost Metro a neat $150,000—$30,000 a day for five days. . . . Chill Willis, ex-vaudeville star now RKO-ing, and his missus have a date with Doc Stork when the March winds blow. . . . It will be two weeks before Charles Boyer can escort his mother to New York where she boards the boat for home—she's standing by for a new upper plate. . . . Richard Dix thumbs-down a $10,000 screen offer for his twins—he's a phobic about child actors. . . . It's a term contract at RKO for Ginger Rogers' favorite cousin, pretty Phyllis Fraser—her first picture will be "Sorority House". . . . Bobby Bren's producers will appreciate it if you will just call him "Bob" from now on. . . . The reason Marle Oberon is rushing for departure for New York is that Boy-friend Alexander Korda is awaiting her there—and he's getting impatient. . . . Blue-pencil those rumored squalls between Sam Goldwyn and David Niven—they've been calmed by a new contract which ups Niven's salary plenty. . . . Eddie Morris and Margaret Lindsay are real by a serious item. . . . Lee Tracy will enter his 62-foot water wagon, the schooner Adoree, in next summer's Santa Monica to Honolulu race. . . . Add budding authors: Gale Sondergaard whose Hollywood diary will be published next fall by Random House. . . . Those fainting spells of Mary Livingstones are chronic—it's an old heart condition. . . . Casting note: Nancy Kelly will play the lead in "Drums Along the Mohawk." It's a cracked elbow for Johnnie Weissmuller—the human fish did a brodie in his bathtub. . . .

There's a straight-forward, uncompromising-honesty about Nelson Eddy that I like. For instance, his refusal to pose for publicity stills suggested the other day by Metro's public-agents. They wanted to dress him in his boots and shoot him fishing in the surf. "There are exactly three reasons why I won't," said Nelson, firmly, "but let's not go past the first one. I never fish!"

BOOS AND BOUQUETS: Best picture of the week: "Cafe Society," with Madeline Carroll a surprisingly deft comedienne. . . . Adolphe Menjou rates a laurel wreath for his swell performance in "King of the Turf," one of the best to date. . . . An up-the-sleeve-snicker at Sam Goldwyn, who released Thomas Mitchell from contract just before the said Mitchell set Hollywood on its ears with his grand miming in "Stage Coach". . . . A bouquet to Lee Tracy who took plenty on the way down but is taking the right way up, now. . . . And a carillon to Uncle Sam for delaying that Benny trial because his absence from Filmmville would impose hardships on the underlings in his picture. . . .

On a Paramount set, I found the producer, assistant producer, director, dance director and art director of "Magnificent Fraud" in a heated argument. First one, then another of the debaters went into a dance step, prouder across the set and plumped down into the lap of a very bewildered carpenter. I asked an explanation and "It's this way," said the director, "Steffi Duna does a dance and finishes it by sitting in a guy's lap. We're trying to decide on the best technique." (Copyright, 1939.)

Kiwanis Club Hears Debate on Spending

Chilton — At the regular meeting of the Chilton Kiwanis club held Tuesday evening, the program consisted of a debate put on by four girls from the Oshkosh State Teachers' college the question being "Resolved: That the U. S. Government should cease its spending in an effort to stimulate business." It was a non-decision debate. Beatrice and Russell Guenther, children of Mr. and Mrs. Ray Guenther, are ill with bronchitis. Miss Edna Raddatz left Saturday for a three weeks' vacation in California. Mrs. Michael Flaherty left Monday.

'HONOLULU' OPENS AT APPLETON

With Eleanor Powell offering a series of new and brilliant dances against the exotic background of Hawaii, with Robert Young in a rib-tickling as well as romantic dual role, and with the sensationally popular comedy team of Burns and Allen adding to the uproar, "Honolulu," the new concoction of music, mirth and melody, opens today at the Appleton Theatre as one of the first of 1939's big movie hits.

"Ambush" is being shown as the co-feature and stars Gladys Swarthout and Lloyd Nolan.

Pupils of the Sunset school and their teacher, Miss Edith Thornton, entertained the mothers of the district at a Valentine party Tuesday afternoon. Gordon Poole gave a reading, "How Valentine's Day Originated." A Valentine contest was won by Mrs. Walter Jarchow and a spelling bee and other contests were held, followed by refreshments.

Those attending were Mrs. Hugo Werth, Mrs. Leonard Allen, Mrs. Arthur Bergsbaken, Mrs. Joel Poole, Phyllis Carpenter, Mrs. Laurence Mansfield, Mrs. Harold Parks, Carol Parks, Mrs. Charles Larson, Mrs. Roy Cook, Mrs. Haze Diemel, Miss Monica Bednorz, Mrs. Dewey Strong, Mrs. Arnold Knapp, Mrs. Ben Peterson and daughter Cleo and Mrs. Ed Young.

12 Police Officers In First Aid Class

The first session in a first aid class for members of the Appleton police department was scheduled to open at 3 o'clock this afternoon at the Appleton Vocational school.

The class will meet each Friday afternoon for eight weeks under the direction of Leon Palmer, who has conducted similar courses for police forces in several other Wisconsin cities. Police Chief George T. Prim has named 12 members of his force to take the course.

Mississippi in 1938 had 31 negro county farm agents, 35 Negro home demonstration agents, two supervisory agents and two club agents.

Fox Valley High Students to Hear Walter E. Meyer

Organizer-Editor Will Address Meeting in Menasha Auditorium

Menasha—Walter E. Meyer, well-known editor of high school publications and director of many youth organizations of Washington, D. C., will address an assembly of high school students from eight Fox Valley schools next Wednesday in the Menasha High school auditorium.

Mr. Meyer edits "The Weekly News Review," "The American Observer," "The Junior Review" and "The Civic Leader." He also is the director of various field projects of the department of secondary school principals, a subdivision of the National Education association and heads the Civic Education service. He also is a member of the International Friendship league.

The student bodies of Neenah and St. Mary High schools will be guests at the assembly as will be representatives and principals of several other schools, including East De Pere, Kewaunee, Kimberly, Seymour and Two Rivers.

Board Will Attend
Members of the board of education also will be guests as will H. H. Helble, principal of Appleton High school, who also is the coordinator for the state of Wisconsin of the N.E.A. Mr. Meyer will come to Menasha as the result of an invitation from Richard Steffens, president of the senior class of Menasha High school.

The speaker will address a joint meeting of members of the Menasha Rotary and Lions clubs at noon Wednesday and in the afternoon will address the student body of Appleton High school. Mr. Meyer is an observer, teacher, and author often referred to as "the man who understands high school problems more so than anyone else."

Because of the crowd of nearly 1,100 students expected for the assembly program Menasha freshmen will occupy the main study hall where the program will be broadcast to them over the public address system.

Technical Books Added at Library

Volumes in Special Fields Are Available for Circulation

Menasha—New books in varied technical fields have been added to the collection at Elisha D. Smith library recently in addition to several biographies.

The technical books include "Painting and Decorating, Estimating" by Dalzell, "Practical Photography" by Roesebeck, "Propagation of Plants" by Kains, "Household Engraving" by Kelly, "Practical Engraving and Etching" by Lutz, "Practice of Printing," a new edition by Polk, "Punches and Dies, Layouts," by Stanley, "Air Conditioning in the Home" by Torak, "Elements of Sheet Metal Work" by Welch and "Foundry Work" by Wenden.

Autobiographies of two prominent American women are included in the biography group, "Such Sweet Compulsion" is the autobiography of Geraldine Farrar, the singer, "Three Rousing Cheers" by Elizabeth Jordan is the story of her life and career as a writer.

A colorful addition to the Lincoln material at the library is "Abraham Lincoln Traveled This Way" by Frederick Holmes of Madison, Wis. He is the author of "Alluring Wisconsin," a book especially popular in this state. His book on Lincoln is an informal approach to the life of the "prairie president" as related to the places where he lived and worked.

Schedule Series of Hybrid Corn Sessions For County Farmers

Menasha—A series of three hybrid corn meetings for Winnebago county farmers will be held next Monday at A. W. Wright, superintendent of hybrid corn production and distribution from the University of Wisconsin, at the speaker, according to Robert C. Heffernan, county agent.

The first meeting will be held at 10 o'clock Monday morning at the Winchester garage, the afternoon meeting will be at 1:30 at the Winnebago village hall and the evening meeting will be at 8 o'clock in the Community Grange hall on county trunk E.

Recommendations as to the type of hybrid corn to raise in Winnebago county for silage, husking, heavy soils, light soils, maturity of corn and the number of the best hybrids for Winnebago county will be made by Mr. Wright. Experiments with hybrid corn were conducted last year on several Winnebago county farms.

The Twin Cities office of the Appleton Post-Crescent for its editorial, circulation and display advertising departments is located at 510 N. Commercial street, and the telephone number is 4100. News items, copy or orders for display advertising and orders for subscriptions may be left at the office or telephoned. Orders for classified advertising should be placed by telephoning 543 in Appleton, and the cost of the telephone call will be rebated. The Twin Cities office closes at 7 o'clock in the evening.

Niemuth to Resign Assembly Seat to Seek Mayoralty Job

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau
Madison, Wis., Assemblyman Leo T. Niemuth, Republican member of the legislature from the first Winnebago county district, probably will announce his candidacy for mayor of Oshkosh formally within a few days, he indicated here yesterday.

Niemuth, who has been on the Oshkosh common council for six years and now its vice chairman, said that friends have been circulating nomination petitions in his behalf, and that they insist that he shall run in the April election.

He indicated that he would not resign his assembly seat to run for the $3,600 a year municipal post.

If he runs, he will have six opponents for the March primary, including former Mayor George Oaks and A. C. McHenry, Charles M. Boller, W. H. Tank and John Diehl, aldermen, and E. R. Siewert.

Carl Stridde Hits Top 661 Series in K-C Bowling Loop

Spills Games of 256, 207 And 198 at Neenah Alleys

Neenah—Carl Stridde, who is said to have learned the sport of bowling as a pin setter, hit the maples for high series of 661 on games of 256, 207 and 198 last night in the Kimberly-Clark Bowling league at the Neenah alleys.

Earl Harder spilled second high series of 639 on counts of 139, 236 and 244, and F. Bremmer hit high game of 265.

Others who rolled on last night's honor roll are R. Johnson 629, G. Henebery 625, Don Lehman 621 and 245, E. Rightor 613, C. Ziegler 611, W. Lundy 609, Don Smith 608 and 258, Art Kober 632, and F. Bremmer 605.

Saneks rolled high team game of 1,036 and high series of 2,926, and the Auditors rolled second high series of 2,826, and the Developers spilled second high game of 1,005.

Two Father-Son Dinners Delayed

Three Others Will be Held at Churches Next Week

Neenah—Two father and son banquets sponsored by men's church groups in Neenah which were scheduled for Tuesday evening have been postponed, but three other banquets, also scheduled for next week, will be held.

The banquet of the Fraternity club of the First Methodist Episcopal church has been postponed until the following Tuesday evening, Feb. 28, because the dedication dinner is being held that evening.

Robert Ozone, president, is arranging the program for the banquet. Our Saviour's Lutheran church banquet was postponed until later in the spring.

The Men's club of the First Presbyterian church will hold a dinner meeting Feb. 23 with Dr. A. E. Rector, Appleton, as guest speaker. He will talk on "The Alternative of Socialized Medicine." The club's annual banquet will be held in April, and plans for the event will be made at the dinner meeting.

Herbert Heilig, Appleton, director of the vocational school, will be the guest speaker at the father and son banquet of the banquet sponsored by the Men's club of St. Paul's English Lutheran church Tuesday evening. Tony Budwit, New London, will entertain, and Daniel Keck will be the toastmaster.

Robert King, youthful ventriloquist from Fond du Lac, will furnish entertainment at the father and son banquet of the Men's club of the Immanuel Lutheran church Tuesday night. The Bloom twins will show moving pictures of scenes around Neenah. Otto Steffenhagen will be the toastmaster.

Article by Instructor
Tells of Food Bulletins
Menasha—An article by Miss Gladys Mahar, home economics instructor at Menasha High school, appeared in the January issue of "Home Economics Professional News Journal." The article described the use of monthly food bulletins given to the Menasha High school students in Miss Mahar's classes.

Birthday Stories Will Feature Library Hour
Menasha—Stories appropriate to February, "the month of birthdays," will be told at the story hour for grade school children at 10:30 Saturday morning at Elisha D. Smith public library. Mrs. B. A. Berglund, children's librarian, will tell the stories.

DALMATIANS WILL BE ENTERED IN PUPPY SHOW

Neenah—Nip and Tuck, two potential ribbon winners for the puppy match to be sponsored by the North-eastern Wisconsin Kennel club at 2:30 Sunday afternoon in the Danish Brotherhood hall, Neenah, are shown above with their mistress, Miss Frances Whiting, 620 E. Forest avenue. The Dalmatians, not quite four months old, will be entered in the show, the first of its kind to be sponsored by the club. The show, which really is an experiment, is open to club members only, but if the show is a success, the club will sponsor a similar show in the spring which will be open to the public. Committees of Twin Cities Planning Variety of Events On Calendar for Coming Weeks

Neenah—Coming events of major importance in Neenah and Menasha have committee members planning for everything from style shows to the Round Table Conference of Jews and Christians.

Next week ushers in the Lenten season for which pastors of all churches in the Twin Cities are busy outlining midweek and special services.

The Twin City Catholic Daughters, Court Allouez, and its convert league will sponsor the second of its lecture series on "Religions That Seem Strange to Us" Tuesday evening, Feb. 28, in the Menasha Club as The Rev. William Willinger, assistant pastor at St. Mary's church, Menasha, speaks on "Ceremonies and Ritual" at 8 o'clock that evening. Miss Genevieve Rogers is general chairman of the convert league.

On Friday, March 3, the Menasha Economics club will bring Nancy Grey, radio commentator, to its club meeting for a talk on "Women in Radio" as it continues its 1938-39 year theme "Women's place in a Changing World."

Sacred Concert
March 4, the Ladies society of First Methodist Episcopal church will sponsor a sacred concert in the new church. Mrs. George Watson will be chairman.

The Neenah-Menasha King's Daughters will sponsor a silver tea at the home of Mrs. F. E. Sensenbrenner March 8 and in the evening of that day, the Twin City Business and Professional Women's club will hear the second lecture of a two lecture series on "The World in Turmoil" by Dr. Ludwig Freund, Ripon college.

Trinity Lutheran church Ladies society of Neenah will sponsor a spring sale March 11.

March 14 and 15 are the dates for the observance in Neenah-Menasha of Brotherhood days at the Chicago Round Table of the National Conference of Jews and Christians, under the auspices of the local committee headed by the Rev. Carl F. Zietlow, the Rev. Joseph Gluckstein and Rabbi Ralph De Koven, sends to Neenah a Protestant minister, a Catholic priest and a Jewish Rabbi for discussions at a mass meeting, a joint service club luncheon meeting and assembly programs at both high schools.

Supper, Sale
Mrs. John Miller and Mrs. Earl Cottrell are chairmen of the committee planning the supper and spring sale in First Congregational church, Menasha, March 15. Group 2 of the Ladies society is sponsoring the event. The Menasha Club will hold a supper and card party for members on this evening also. Mr. and Mrs. R. Waldo will be chairmen.

The Twin City Y. W. C. A. has chosen the week of March 20 to 27 as its finance campaign week.

March 29 is the date chosen by the Menasha club for its supper and card party for members. Mr. and Mrs. B. F. Smith, Appleton, will be chairmen.

Menasha Garden club will sponsor a Dirt Clinic April 4 with H. J. Rahmlow, Madison, as guest speaker.

Mrs. A. O. Christopher and her committee, Mrs. William Campbell, Mrs. F. Herrick, Miss Luella Radtke, Mrs. George Johnson Mrs. Leo Cyrillus, Mrs. Adeline Radtke, from the membership of the Neenah Women's Relief corps are planning for the Grand Army Day ball, April 6 in the S. A. Cook armory.

Century Club Dance
Twin City Century club will hold a dancing party April 14 with Mr. and Mrs. K. S. Sheppard, chairmen.

Crown Four Class Ping-Pong Champs

Sensenbrenner, DeLong, Younger, Popp Win Menasha High Titles

Menasha—Four class ping-pong champions have been crowned as the results of a tournament conducted by O. F. Johanson at Menasha High school. The champions are Robert Sensenbrenner, senior; Earl DeLong, junior; Dean Younger, sophomore, and Donald Popp, freshman.

A tournament for junior high school boys is planned for next week while an all-school tournament will be conducted later. Fifty-six boys entered the various class tournaments.

Robert Sensenbrenner defeated John Levandowski handily in two straight games to win the senior crown on 21 to 9 and 21 to 13 scores.

Sensenbrenner advanced to the finals by beating Kenneth DuCharme, William Machie and Jack Crackett while Levandowski reached the finals by defeating Earl Block, Donald Drucks and Frank Younger, Jr.

Earl DeLong scored 21 to 11 and 21 to 16 victories over William Schmitzer to win the junior title. In addition to his victory over Schmitzer, DeLong also defeated Glenn Ohlroge and Kenneth Maas. Ten seven juniors entered the tournament and Schmitzer advanced to the finals via a bye and a victory over Henry Spice.

Dean Younger won the sophomore crown but only after a three-game set with George Bendt. Younger won the first game 21 to 15, dropped the second 19 to 21 and then took the last game 21 to 14. In the first two rounds Younger defeated Armin Weber and William Riley while Bendt defeated Royalle Streck and Donald Jensen.

Donald Popp won the freshman crown after two close games with Harold Block. The scores were 21 to 18 and 21 to 19. In the preliminary rounds, Block defeated Richard Anderson, Arthur Bobb and Donald Grode while Popp advanced to the title by defeating William Hafmeister, Harold Maas and Allan Stierman.

Neenah Educators to Attend Ohio Conclave

Neenah—John H. Holzman, Neenah High school principal, and Mrs. Laura Uffery, grade school supervisor, will attend the sixty-ninth annual convention of the American Association of School Administrators at Cleveland, Ohio, Feb. 25 to March 2.

Methodist Congregation to Dedicate New Structure in Elaborate Service Sunday

Neenah—Church dignitaries, including Bishop J. Ralph Magee, St. Paul, members of the congregation and friends will be on hand Sunday for the elaborate dedication service of the new $55,000 First Methodist Episcopal church.

Finishing touches on the beautiful, Lannon stone structure were being made today in preparation for the service as well as a week of dedication observance.

The edifice, erected on the southwest corner of S. Commercial street and W. Doty avenue, was built to replace the former structure which was destroyed by fire Nov. 17, 1937.

The red tiled roof building stands out conspicuously in comparison to the drab looking city hall across the street and the business-like looking red brick Wisconsin Telephone company building to the north.

Methodists in Neenah and Menasha have booked a full week for their dedication. The observance will get underway with the Sunday morning worship service with Bishop Magee delivering the sermon. The dedication will take place in the afternoon with the bishop again officiating and in the evening, a homecoming service with former pastors as guest speakers will be held.

Dedication Dinner
Although the observance doesn't carry over to Monday, the dedication week dinner will be held in the Fellowship hall Tuesday, and Thursday the Ladies Aid society will entertain at an open house tea for the women of the Twin Cities. Friday evening the Young People's society will give an open house for the young people societies, pastors and wives of Neenah and Menasha churches, and the following Sunday regular worship services will be held. In the evening, an organ recital will be presented with William J. Brockman, Milwaukee, at the organ and Miss Muriel Engelland, Chicago, soloist.

Flames which razed the structure in only a few hours caused the most sensational occurrence in Neenah in 1937. Church officials lost little time in deciding to erect a new structure. Architects were put to work, the debris cleaned away and the Nimmer-Lemke construction company, Kaukauna, was awarded the contract. When spring arrived, construction got underway. Construction progressed so rapidly that the corner stone was laid with Bishop Magee officiating on July 17, exactly eight months after the fire. The Rev. I. E. Schlagenhauf, Appleton, district superintendent, the Rev. C. W. Heywood, and the Rev. Henry Johnson, pastor, assisted.

The structure consists of three floors. On the main floor are the sanctuary, chapel and class rooms, while on the second floor are the library, department rooms and kitchen. The Fellowship hall, kitchen and boiler room are in the basement.

Bishop Will Speak
Dedication service for the English Gothic structure starts at 10 o'clock in the afternoon with Mrs. E. F. Schell, organist, playing "Ave Maria." Congregational prayer of confession will be followed by hymns, "The Church's One Foundation" and "Holy, Holy, Holy! Lord God Almighty," with the Rev. Mr. Johnson reciting. The junior choir anthem, directed by Miss Celia Jensen, "Open the Door for the Children," will be followed by a prayer by the Rev. Mr. Schlagenhauf. The offertory will be followed by the senior choir anthem, directed by Miss Ruth Siewert, "Gloria." Then the bishop will give his sermon and officiate at the dedication service. A hymn, "Glorious Things of Thee are Spoken," will be followed by benediction by the bishop. The doxology and postlude will conclude the service.

Considerable credit has been extended to the members of building and finance committees which, assisted by the Rev. Mr. Johnson, have supervised the construction of the new church. M. G. Hoyman is chairman of the building committee, and he is assisted by W. K. Gerbrick, Miss Edna Mae Harris, Huron Brien, Dr. L. J. McCrary, Mrs. A. Johnson, A. M. Haskins and E. E. Lampert. The finance committee is composed of Haskins, chairman, Bert Rhoades, A. McLeod and Mrs. D. E. Price, financial secretary.

Boys' Brigade to Hold Basketball Tournament
Neenah—The Neenah Boys' Brigade Saturday afternoon will hold a basketball tournament in the gymnasium. At 1:30, Jack Williams' team will meet James Dieckhoff's team, and the team captained by Ed Kalfahs, Jr. will play Bob Halverson's team at 2:15. At 3 o'clock, Karl Schultz' team will meet the team captained by R. Schmidt and Junior Hius, and at 3:45, James Young's team will meet Dick Hanson's five.

Hot Box Starts Fire At Menasha Paper Mill
Menasha—A hot box on a paper machine ignited the roll of paper as it came off the paper-making machine at the Wisconsin Tissue Mills, Third street, last night and resulted in a call to the Menasha fire department at 9:40. An automatic sprinkling system extinguished the flames although members of the department used mechanical extinguishers to kill the fire around the hot box.

Babson Outlines Reasons Why U.S. Money Still Good

Admits Predicting There Would be Phoney Money in America

BY ROGER BABSON
St. Petersburg, Fla.—Since 1933, nearly every economist, including myself, has predicted that we would have phoney dollars in the United States. Yet after six years of the wildest spending spree on record, the American dollar is today the strongest currency on earth.

Furthermore, few economists are now worrying about it. Can it be that they were all mistaken? Will our dollar continue sound? Or have certain factors intervened to save us temporarily? I strongly feel that the latter is true. I am also positive that only a spiritual revival can save us from eventual trouble. Here however, are eight reasons why our dollar is still good, despite our mammoth spending programs:

1. Debt no greater than in 1929: Total debt in the United States is no greater today than in 1929. There has been a $30,000,000,000 gain in federal debt, but private debt has been cut an almost equal amount. Private debt, however, is a lesser evil. Private debt is a lien on definite companies, a mortgage on definite homes, a load on the backs of definite individuals. Private debt is paid off or settled because it is an individual's responsibility; public debt is seldom paid off for it is everybody's—and, therefore, nobody's—responsibility.
2. Scarcity of private investments:

The drastic slashing of private debt is one major reason why United States bond prices have held up in the face of our wild spending orgy. The money formerly invested in private loans must be put to work somewhere else. Much of it has gone into government bonds. Compare our life insurance companies' portfolios today with 1929. The percentage of funds invested in U. S. "Government" has increased over ten times. Naturally, this scarcity of private securities has helped to push up prices of public bonds.

3. Public bonds tax-exempt: Since 1929, taxes have been pushed sky-high in the wealthy brackets. But government bonds are free from normal tax and certain short-term treasury notes are even exempt from sur-taxes. Hence, the big investor can get as good a return on a 1 per cent treasury note as on a 3 per cent top-grade corporate bond. One of the best ways to curb public spending would be to throw out this tax-exemption feature. Without it, public borrowing would become difficult. If the politicians cannot easily borrow money, they will have to spend less money because they cannot push taxes much higher!

4. Control of bank investments: The biggest prop for public credit SO FAR has been the new federal control of bank investing since 1933. Banks have been encouraged to buy governments. They have taken the lion's share of the $30,000,000,000 of new bonds. A banker's only obligation is to pay dollars. He does not have to worry about how much food and clothing the dollars he pays out will buy compared with the dollars which were deposited. As government bonds are now exchangeable into paper dollars, one can easily see why bankers buy these bonds.

5. Destroying confidence in business: Investors' confidence in private bonds and stocks has been undermined by attacks on business by politicians; by burdensome taxes; by the fostering of labor troubles. Such actions have forced huge sums of timid capital into savings banks, trust funds, annuities—and, from there into government bonds. High prices have created the impression that United States Governments are the safest investment on earth. Yet their ultimate value will depend on the ability of business to make money in order to pay taxes.

6. Increase in raw material supplies: Another reason that the buying power of our dollar has not declined is because there are huge surpluses of nearly all raw materials. Since 1933, our output of copper, cotton, wheat, etc., has increased spectacularly. At the same time there have been feverish efforts by other countries to boost their production. For instance, the amount of foreign cotton grown has jumped 60 per cent since 1933.

7. All nations have abandoned gold: If all nations had been solidly on gold when the United States abandoned it in 1933, I believe the effects here would have been far inflationary. However, the entire world drifted away from gold together. The government of every major nation is today spending out more money than it takes in. Our fiscal policies, have been unsound but, the policies of most other nations have been even less sound. Actually, there is more gold behind the American dollar today than there is behind the pound, the franc, the yen, the lira, or the mark.

8. Unsettled foreign conditions: When all is said and done, the United States and Canada are the soundest countries in the world in which to invest or to live. Billions of dollars of foreign "fear" money have been sent across the Atlantic—creating the biggest credit reserves in our history. Indentures of loans of one European country to another are now substituting a "dollar clause" in the place of the old "gold clause." (such as in a recent Dutch loan to a French railroad). This means the world recognizes that the dollar is the strongest of all currencies. It may also mean a lack of faith in gold!

Despite eight years of dangerous policies, the United States and Canada are still the strongest nations financially. In a world where government credit generally is rotten, our credit is 100 per cent acceptable. Moreover, this precious asset can be maintained if reckless spending is stopped now!

Credit Best Defense
Let me remind those who urge continued spending and who shout about the necessity of arming against the dictators of Europe of a famous conversation between an eminent Japanese and Theodore Roosevelt. The Japanese said: "No nation would dare to attack you."

They would be attacking the strongest military machine in the world—the United States Treasury."

This statement is just as true now as 30 years ago. We can provide ourselves with far more protection against attack by stopping political raids on our own treasury than by building naval stations on Guam Island, 6,000 miles out in the Pacific ocean!
